BREAKING THE DOORS.

ANEW AMUSEMENT IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THE GRIT OF BUCK KILGORE. Congressman Crisp Leads in the Battle, and Tones Down Speaker Reed-Inter-esting News From Washington.

WASHINGTON, September 18 .- [Special.]-This has been a day of excitement and sensations in the house.

The greatest parliamentary battle of the session was fought between the two parties.
The democrats came out victorious this afternoon, but the chances are that it is only a temporary victory. The republicans not only have the majority, but they have the machinery and the rascality on their side.

THE FIGHT OPENS. The fight opened this morning when Reed counted a quorum. It was evident that a quorum was not in the house, but that he had simply counted them in his own mind. There were only fifteen democrats on the floor. Under this count, Reed had the journal read, but the vote, on approving it, disclosed the fact that there was no quorum present, and a call of the house was ordered. This brought the desired quorum, and Reed ordered the clerk to call the roll again on approving the journal. This was a clear violation of his own gag rules, and in an instant Judge Crisp was on his feet, and said that, under the rules, the only motion in order were to adjourn or dispense with the Never before had such a suggestion as that of the speaker been made. Reed did not think he would be caught in this usurpation of power, and the words of the Georgian threw him into a passion of anger. He blurted out: "But it is high time such a suggestion should

At this Judge Crisp became a little riled himself, and answered firmly:

"The speaker is not the master of this house; be is the servant of the house." "The gentleman from Georgia need not end," retorted the speaker. "But," said the Georgian warmly, but firmly, "the gentleman from Georgia will always insist upon his rights, and see that no tyrant takes them away from him."

At this the democrats in the hall applauded. Republicans all over the floor hopped up to interrupt, and some one yelled out that the gentleman from Georgia was out of order. 'Not more so than the speaker," cooly replied Judge Crisp. Again Tom Reed's angry passions arose, and he bluntly commanded Judge Crisp to resume

"The gentleman from Georgia will do so," replied the judge, smilingly, "but he will always resent such remarks, whether in the house or out of it."

THE ROLL CALL STOPPED.

Judge Crisp's nerve won the battle. Reed stopped the roll call, which had commenced, and had it called on a motion to dispense with the call of the house. As soon as this commenced all the democrats, except Judge Crisp and Mr. O'Ferrall, who remained to do guard duty, commenced to retire from the hall. Reaching the door, they found it locked, and the doorkeepers re-fused to open it, saying that Speaker Reed had given orders not to let a single democrat get

"We will see about that," said Colonel Buck Kilgore, the brawney and nervy Texan, as he walked up to the door. He first tried it, but finding it locked, plunged against it with his entire weight, and forced it from its fastenings. Unfortunately, Mr. Dingley, of Maine, a re publican, was on the outside, and as the door smashed, it struck him plump in the face. The blood flowed freely from his nose, and the Maine man gathered himself up and rushed to the cloakroom, to bathe his wounded organ. Somebody said something about first blood for the democrats, and then they filed out through the opening the Texan had forced.

THE DOORS BARRED. Reed said nothing, but gave orders to have the door barred up. They were repaired, and soon afterwards Congressmen Amos Cummings and Bankhead appeared to get out. The doorkeeper refused, when Cummings said, commandingly:

"You open that door, or it will again be

The doorkeeper took water, and the door was opened. The democrats this time left the building entirely, and the tyrant speaker, with the aid of all his page boys, could not stir up a quorum to take up the contested election case. Reed was as mad as a hornet. He waited a long time, but being unable to do anything with Judge Crisp on the watch, the house adjourned, and the republicans gave up the fight for the day.

A republican caucus was immediately called and in it Reed advised various tyrannical schemes, but his party would not uphold him They were not as mad as he. Finally the caucus adjourned without doing anything, except to order telegrams sent out to all absent republicans, demanding their immediate return. The fight will again open tomorrow. The republicans seem determined to oust Mr. Venable and seat the negro, while the demo-crats are equally determined they shall do nothing of the kind

HONOR TO AN ALABAMA BOY. The house has passed the senate bill cre-ating an additional vacancy in the grade of ensign in the nawy, and authorizing the president to fill it by the appointment of Richard H. Jackson, of Alabama, a late naval cadet. Mr. Jackson is the young man who distinguished himself in the great storm at Apia, Samoa, by leading the men of the Trento into the mizzen rigging to form a sail, so as to bear the ship off the reef to which she was surely drifting. Admiral Kimberly highly complimented Mr. Jackson on his bravery in time of such peril, and in a report to Secretary Tracy says that he not only saved the Trenton's crew, but also that of the Vandalia, who racy says that he not only saved the Irenton's crew, but also that of the Vandalia, who would all have been lost had not the Trenton drifted alongside and rescued her men. Mr. Jackson is only twenty-three years old, and was appointed to the naval academy by General Wheeler, of Alabama, graduating in the class of 1887. He was serving out his two years' cruise when the Trenton was lost. At the expiration of his cruise he returned to the naval academy for final graduation, but failed to secure a commission, as, when his number in the class was reached, the vacancies were exhausted. He was then given a year's sea pay and an honorable discharge. Mr. Jackson's bill has now passed both houses of congress, and the president will no doubt send in his nomination shortly.

He was unable to give bond, and went to jail. The case on which bond, and went to jail. which he never owned. The deal was carried on by mail.

A complete story of Wellborn's operations for the past three years would fill volumes. He carried on his correspondence on letter heads of a company put down as having $10,000,000 capital, with branch offices in New York, London, Paris and Berlin. The company does not exist. Wellborn has been in the habit of buying anything he could get without paying the money for it, and many of his schemes have been gigantic in proportions. When arrested he had in his possession bills of lading for linseed meal, crates of milk, cans of butter, machines and many other articles. Wellborn has no legitimate business, but lives by swindling schemes. He has been arrested before on various charges, but always managed to keep out of prison until this time. It will take some time to ascertain the full extent of his operations. on by mail.

A NOISY CROWD. The Republican State Convention in South

Carolina.

CGLUMBIA, S. C., September 18.—

The republican state convention reconvened this morning, at 9 o'clock. The committee on credentials reported in favor of seating all the Miller delegates. The convention is now discussing this report, and permanent organization has not yet been effected. Miller now has control of the convention, and no doubt his man, ex-Congressman Smalls, will be made permanent chairman. The convention is a very noisy body, and works slowly. Miller and Webster are working together. Miller is the conteste for Elliott's seat in con-gress, and Webster is collector of internal revenue, who succeeded Brayton, who was removed by President Harrison. After a sharp contest, Miller and Wheeler captured the convention, and made George W. Murray, a negro of Sumter, permanent chairman. Brayton was entirely ignored. Since the nomination of Murray, Brayton's friends have determined to put him in the field as a candidate for congress against Miller in the only republican district in the state, the sev-enth. This will insure the election of a democrat and the return of Congressman Elliott.

There is a strong disposition to nominate a state ticket, and the question is now being discussed. A platform has not yet been reported by the committee.

Dr. Davis Shot. CHATTANOGA, Tenn., September 18.—[Special.]—Dr. K. D. Davis, of Whiteside, Tenn., general manager of the Ætna mines, was shot while in his own yard today by some unknown party. It was done with a rift of large bore. The ball penetrated the right breast and produced a probably fatal wound. The supposition is that the shot was fired by one of the gang of striking miners, who for a few days have been quite boisterous in the vicinity of Whiteside.

THE DEATH SIGNAL.

Premeditated Suicide of Two Lovers in New York City.

New York, September 18.—About day-break a fair-haired German—a stalwart and handsome-looking man—entered the elevated railroad station. The man paced up and down the platform. After awhile a woman's voice was heard to speak a word or two of German from a window overlooking where the man stood. The man nodded and replied loud nough for the gateman to hear him:

"Yes, I have come, Emilie; are you ready?"
The answer from the window was not heard. The man turned on his heel and took some thing from his pocket. The next moment a shot rang out and the man fell heavily for-ward on his face. Before the report had died away, the station man, who rushed forward, heard what seemed to be the eche of the shot coming apparently from a window of the house overlooking the end of the platform where the dead man lay. No attention was paid to it, as they were attending to the dead man.

Patrolmen and physicians were hurriedly called out. When they arrived the man was dead. He had shot himself through the temple. While the officers were examining the clothing and effects of the suicide, a messenger rushed into the station house and cried out that a woman had shot herself at 140 Canal street. The keeper of the Germania cafe there had found Emilie Rossi, an actress, who boarded in the house, dead, shot through the heart. One window of her room overlooked the south end of the uptown platform, the one which the gateman had seen opened previously, and from which the sound of the second shot was heard. Behind lace curtains, a woman had sat waiting for the trysting death signal. It had come, and at the signal "Ready," the man fell dead under the window, and she shot herself to the heart within. There lay three visiting cards with farewell messages over the name of "Emilie Rossi." It seemed as plain as day that they had prearranged their suicides.

This cut has been obstructed for over a month by a man named Brady, who claimed several thousand dollars was due him by the road. He purchased two acres of ground at the cut and when the company tore up the rails to change the grade refused to let them be replaced, His guard was arrested, but his rais to consige the grade retused to let them be replaced. His guard was arrested, but his wife and daughter came to the rescue, and prevented the railroad men from going to work. Legal proceedings were resorted to, but as they promised to drag along in the courts, a compromise was made, as a subscription of $30,000 from Bedford county and $150,000 from Lincoln depended upon the road being completed between Shelbyville, Tenn., and Decatur, Ala., before October 1st. The road will be built on to Gallatin or Nashville, it has not been determined which.

The Crop Coming in Early. The Crop Coming in Early.

RALEIGH, N. C., September 18.—[Special.]
The cotton receipts here will be the greatest on record in September. There is no doubt that nearly the whole crop in this section will be open by the end of the month, and the main trouble will be securing enough hands to pick it. Though there are no complaints of a scarcity of labor, yet there is not enough of it to keep up with a crop so rapidly opening.

BALFOUR'S HAND

LAID HEAVILY ON IRELAND ONCE AGAIN.

ARREST OF DILLON AND O'BRIEN. There Is Great Indignation Throughout Ire-Cause of the Arrests.

DUBLIN, September 18 .- Mr. John Dillon was arrested this morning, at his residence near this city. He was conveyed on a special train to Tipperary, accompanied by a large military escort. Mr. William O'Brien was ar-rested at Glengariff and taken to Cork. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of Messrs. Sheedy and Condon, members of the house of commons, Patrick O'Brien and Rev. David Humphreys, of Tipperary. The charges on which Mr. Dillon was arrested are conspiracy and inciting tenants on the Smith-Barry's estate not to pay rents. Mr. Dillon was not arrested at his home, as stated, but at the residence of his uncle, whom he was visiting, at Ballybrack. The special train made only a brief stop in Dublin, and proceeded to Tipperary, the tenants of which town he is charged with having incited by his speech to refuse payment of rent to their landlord, Smith Barry.

The arrest of William O'Brien was made at Glengariff hotel. Mrs. O'Brien was present at the time. The charges against Mr. O'Brien are similar to those against Mr. Dillon. In addition to those already mentioned, it is ascertained that a warrant has been issued for Mr. Dalton, who has been active in the work of the Land League.

THE POLICE WATCHING HEADQUARTERS. Here in Dublin the police are keeping a strict watch of the headquarters of the land league. Persons entering or leaving are sub-jected to close scrutiny. Dispatches from Tipperary report that organizers of the local branch of the league there are under close police surveillance, and are being constantly shadowed. This special activity of the police leads to the belief that the authorities are con templating further arrests.

OTHER ARRESTS TO BE MADE.

It is considered altogether probable that warrants are already out against many leaders in the land league of secondary rank and importance, who have made themselves obnoxious by the setive part they have taken in the recent anti-rent campaign. No one will be surprised, therefore, to hear, at any moment, that other men have been taken into custody. This sudden action of the government has fallen ilke a bolt from a clear sky. Irish nationalists had no suspicion of the impending blow, and are at a loss to know what it portends. Mingled surprise and indignation are the predominant feelings in Dublin today. Dispatches from various parts of Ireland indicate that the nationalists are everywhere greatly excited. The arrests were so utterly unexpected that the surprise with which they were first heard, soon gave way to a feeling of suspense as to what the government would do next. THE MATTER IN COURT.

In Tipperary court, formal evidence of the arrest of Mr. O'Brien was given before Magistrate Irwin, and Mr. Ronan, who conducted the prosecution, asked that Mr. O'Brien be remanded until Thursday. Counsel for Mr. O'Brien cross-examined Inspector Roffer, with the view of showing that, although Mr. O'Brien had committed the alleged illegal acts in June, no steps had been taken for his arrest until it was heard that he was going to America. Inspector Roffer denied that the mission to America had anything whatever to do with the case. Mr. O'Brien here remarked that the whole world knew the government's motive for making the arrests. Mr. O'Brien was admitted to bail, Canon Cahill being his surety.

On the application of Mr. Ronan, war-rants were issued for the arrest of other members of the National League. There was a slight disturbance outside the courthouse here. A large crowd of people, accompanied by a drum and fife were waiting at the station for Mr. Dillon, who was driven in the mayor's carriage to his own residence, where he addressed the people from the steps. He said that the more requently arrests were made, the more res olute Trishmen would become in the national

DILLON SAYS IT IS A MYSTERY.

Mr. Dillon, in an interview after his arrest, said that the object of the government in taking such a step is a mystery to him, unless it was their intention to prevent the mission of himself and associates to America. He was sure, however, that the Americans would not deprive the tenants of Tipperary and other estate of needful support, although it might be impossible for Mr. O'Brien and himself to go to America and make a personal appeal in their behalf. In his opinion, the arrests would do more harm to opponents of the tenants than a dozen public meetings.

Mr. Dillon also remarked that the coincidence of a priest denouncing Irish agitation at the very moment when the warrants for the arrest of himself and his associates were being drawn, would appear to many not to be a mere accident. Happily he had satisfied himself that the reports of dissension in the Irish party were unfounded, and their ranks presented an unbroken front. DISCUSSED IN LONDON.

LONDON, September 18.—There was no abatement of interest throughout the day in Irish arrests. Up to 7 o'clock this evening no definite information had reached London of specific utterances of Messrs. Dillon and O'Brien, on which warrants for their arrest were based. Neither had the governmen given out any official explanation which would throw light upon their sudden and unexpected resort to a vigorous Irish policy. It is commonly supposed tonight that the ostensible grounds for Mr. O'Brien's arrest are to be found in the very plain speech that he made last Sunday to an assemblage of peasants at an insignificant village, in the county of Cork, Schull. He dwelt upon the failure of the potato crop and spoke of the gloomy outlook for wide-spread distress which Ireland must face this winter. Warming to his theme he said: tens of thousands of small farmers throughout Ireland it will become a question this winter, whether they are to have food or their landlords." Confronted with such an alternative, he thought there should be no hesitancy as to the choice. He advised tenants on every estate to meet and consult as to what proportion if any, of their rent they could honestly pay. When that question had been determined, they should all abide by the decision. If the farmers, he said, should give to the landlords money which was needed to buy bread for their children, Irish leaders would be to any the control to the world to come would not dare to appeal to the world to come to the rescue of such a nation of slaves. But if the tenants would absolutely refuse to pay a penny of rent until every family that tilled soil was placed beyond the reach of starvation, then if the government evicted starving people from their poor homes, it would be swept out of existence by a torrent of English indig-nation and the whole civilized world would send money and assistance for the benefit of

The one topic in London today is the news from Ireland of the arrests today. The gen-eral feeling is one of profound surprise, as the government had kept its secret so well that no hint of its intended action had reached the public. No explanation for the reasons of the government's course has as yet been vouch-safed. On all sides doubts are freely expressed as to the political wisdom displayed, but it is too early to estimate the effect of the arrests on public opinion in England. WHAT THE PARNELLITES THINK. The Parnellites, while greatly surprised, are by no means cast down. Their experience in the past leads them to take a philosophical view of the situation, and to expect, as a final outcome, advantage to their cause. Their theory of the arrests at this particular juncture is that the government decided on them in order to prevent the departure of Mesers. Dillon and O'Brien to America. This the government wished to stop, the Parnellites assert, because they feared that the effect of the speeches of the Irish orators in America would be to create a fresh and striking outburst of American sympathy with the Irish home rulers, which would be of great moral help to the liberal cause as championed by

WHAT MICHAEL DAVITT SAYS. Michael Davitt was interviewed this afternoon in regard to the arrests. He took a very hopeful view of the situation, and thought the effect would be entirely favorable to the Irish

"If Dillon and O'Brien," he said, "had deliberately set out to devise plans for increasing the popularity of the plan of the campaign and heightening the prestige of the land league, they could not have accomplished their pur-pose in any way more successfully than by in-ducing Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, to: take precisely the step that he has taken of his own volition. It is just what they wanted. There had begun to be a feeling in Ireland that the plan of campaign had been carried far enough. These arrests will be sure to rouse sentiment in its favor again. Balfour has not made a greater mistake since he has been in chief authority over Ireland.

has not made a greater mistake since he has been in chief authority over Ireland.

MR. PARNELL WILL CALL A MERTING.

The Parnellites have expected a general raid by the government with the view to suppress the national league all around.

Mr. Parnell is to make arrangements for an early meeting of his followers in London.

T. P. O'Conner and James O'Kelly will probably take berths on the steamer Teutonic, which Dillon and O'Brien had secured for passage to the United States.

Mr. Dillon was also bailed, giving £1,000 as security. He was remanded until Thursday. The warrant mentions offenses occurring between March and September. The constable served summons on Sheeby at his residence, but did not arrest him. At a meeting of the league in Tipperary two-boycotted shopkeepers asked for admittance to the league.

COMMENT OF THE LONDON PRESS.

LONDON, September 19.—The News says:
Balfour has met Ireland's famine appeal after his fashion, and has committed an act of stupendous folly. We are slow to believe him stupid enough to desire to prevent their mission to America, because others are going in their stead and will most with a splendid reception. It is difficult. Indeed, to assign any rational motive.

The Chronicle says:

The Parnellite taunts regarding Balfour's indifference have at last drawn a badger. He probably intended to avert disorder in Ireland, for it is unlikely that he wanted to prevent Dillon and O'Brien from going, and so send Parnell and others to America.

The Telegraph justifies the arrests. It says:

says:
The Parnellites were becoming more daring in face of the supposed supineness of the government.

The Times says:
The only cause for the surprise is that the arrest was delayed so long. The resolute action of the government will be welcomed by all candid friends of civil order.

The Standard says:

The Prosecution has nothing to do with speeches delivered elsewhere than in Tipperary. The coupwas admirably managed and prevented the arrestees from exercising their well-known skill at an opportune disappearance.

A Riot in Lisbon.

Lisbon, September 18 .- Wednesday night a Lisnox, September 18.—Wednesday night a mob attacked eight policemen in the streets. A conflict arose in which stones and revolvers were freely used. Forty-two of the rioters were arrested. Later the riot became general and the municipal guard was called out. The mob then took refuge in the Cafe Martinho, in the plaza Dom Fedro, where the customers consisted of journalists, deputies and merchants. The soldiers fired into the building, wounding several of the occupants.

A German Denial.

Berlin, September 18.—Herr Schmidt tele-graphs officially from Zanzibar that neither at Dar-es-Salam, Emo, nor at Bagamoyo, has any proclamation with reference to slave-trading been issued; that no licenses have been granted to dealers; that no actions against freed slaves have ever occurred on the coast; that the statement that Zanzibar dealers have gone to the coast to engage in the slave trade is unfounded, and that the recent mendacious reports were spread for the purpose of injuring the Germans.

They Are Given Strong Evidence of Sympo thy and Support—Terminal Facili-ties Discussed.

It was a large and representative body of men that met in the reading room of the Kimball house yesterday morning. Every interest as near as possible had been included in the invitations sent out and almost all of them

The party of eastern capitalists was com posed of the following gentlemen: Messrs. J. A. Watson and L. H. Taylor, of Philadelphia: J. Tennis and E. A. Tennis, of Pennsylvanja; Henry E. Cobb, of Boston; Schuyler Quackenbush and Charles Benner, of Those present were, besides Mr. Machen and his party, Mayor Glenn, Captain E. P. Howell, Mr. M. C. Kiser, Mr. Hoke Smith, Messrs. C. M. Lewis, J. M. High, Commissioner Henderson, S. B. Spen-W. Mr. E. P. Millett, of Owensboro, Ky., was present, and the Savannah delegation, consisting of William Garrard, Herman Meyers president of the council, and F. M. Farley. were prominent figures in the meeting.

The meeting organized by calling the mayor to the chair and requesting the representatives of THE CONSTITUTION and Journal to act as secretaries.

Mayor Glenn's Talk. Mayor Glenn opened the meeting with a vigorous talk, which was strongly for Atlanta and for the road. He said: "I desire to say to the gentlemen who have come here for business that they came to a good country, as true to this government as any part of the United States. I believe you have come to a city where property is as safe now as at any place in this country, and I think it will be safer here in the future. We have no elements which would injure prop erty-no class of people who are naturally opposed to the accumulation, preservation and protection of property. I know whereof I speak. As I said before, in the future propthan anywhere. "We never have any labor troubles. The only strike we ever had in Atlanta was the strike of half a dozen switchmen. They thought that they were not paid enough and walked out and another half a dozen took their places. I don't think a policeman or marshal or a sheriff appeared on the scene at erty will have better protection in the south

"Atlanta talks for herself. They accuse Atlanta people of blowing. They say every Atlanta man has a tin horn; but we never blow Atlanta to anybody who has been her and seen it. We simply tell them the truth about Atlanta, and those who haven't been here don't believe it.

"Birmingham and some of these other towns had a newspaper population nearly twice as large as Atlanta's. Well, I think the United States government is rather impartial, between cities, especially in the south—it may not be between New York and Philadelphia—
I den't know about that. By the government's count Atlanta has double and treble the population of these rival cities.

"Atlanta is a railroad town. If there is anything she likes it is a railroad-especially railroad to Savannah. As I told one of these gentlemen from there, if you could pick up Savannah and splice it on to Atlanta, what a great city it would make! But that can't be done, and the next best thing is to build an air-line connecting the two cities.

"You gentlemen understand what advantage it would be to Atlanta and Savannah, and. above all, what advantage it would be to the ad. I understand you save sixty or sixty-five miles in the 300. From the way railroads charge, this is a big saving. It goes through a fine country. We have a gennan here, the commissioner of agriculture of the state, who lives in one of those counties He will tell you what they are and what they produce. The road could not find a better country if it looked for it.

"We have gentlemen here who can build railroads for other people or for themselves— It don't matter much to them-and if you gentlemen don't build this road they will, but we are not selfish; we don't want to get all the best things. This country is open to the Mayor Glenn then introduced Colonel G W. Adair as a railroad man who had been both conductor and president, conductor be fore the time of tickets, and resigned when they were put in, because he considered it a personal reflection. [Laughter.]

Colonel G. W. Adair. Colonel Adair then held the attention of the meeting while he discussed the possibilities

"Some years ago," said Colonel Adair, "I was appointed on a committee to reconnoiter s read from Atlanta to the sea, and we actually all 105 miles of railroad, and the president is in the room. The Atlanta and Hawkinsville is now being run successfully, and was built by Atlanta money. That road is doing a great deal of good. Everybody got centered on the other line, and the gentleman who got started in the line over this route, stopped it."

Here he referred in complimentary terms to Mr. Machen and his wonderful work on the Covington and Macon. "He now comes for-ward," said Colonel Adair, "accompanied by people from the east to feel the pulse of At-

"This road is on an air-line to Savannah, and at a certain point it can diverge to Port

"The largest freight payers in the state are in this room. Some men here pay $50,000 to $75,000 a year for freight. This road, sixty to sixty-five miles shorter than any other, is sur of a good business and the sympathy and patronage of these people I think these gentlemen can count with certainty. I say to you, gentlemen, if I were asked to go 150 miles through the best country round Atlanta I go over this route, through DeKalb, Newton, Jasper, Morgan, Putnam, Baldwin and so on the Savannah river-the best country Atlanta could show out of her territory. Its productiveness, water power and various evi-dences of freight and passenger business are to

"Here is a fair representation of the various interests of Atlanta, the presses, heavy freight, dry goods, hardware, men in every depart nt of business are in this room, waiting and anxious to give you every encouragement they can to build this road. In fact, you will receive the sympathy of the people, and the sympathy of the laws of the state of Georgia. There is no place in the United States where you are freer from influences that make capital timid. You are among a set of the state of Georgia. id. You are among a safe, law-abiding People. We make no war on other roads.

They have been a grand thing for Atlanta. Men in the room One man built a railroad with three words: Agitate! Agitate! Agitate!'

"The controlling power of railroads in Georgia is now largely in Wall street, and these people want an independent road, which can weld on to other lines and make a competitive system. "The East Tennessee road was built to Savannah and Brunswick, and the incre usiness is so great that the other roads have not felt it. Competition gets up new busines comebody will build this road because the to pography of the country shows it. These gentlemen may want some terminal facilities in Atlanta. Our representatives must look to that. Mr. Hoke Smith's road the Marietta and North Georgia, and Judge Tompkins's road wants to get in. I give notice now that Atlanta must take hold of this subject and give every road a fair, square entranceinto Atlanta.

Captain E. P. Howell. Mayor Glenn then introduced Captain E. P

Howell. "I feel somewhat embarrassed to be here before these gentlemen," said he, "because I don't know exactly what you expect me to say. I suppose you want moral support. So far as I am concerned, I can say this every new railroad that enters Atlanta is a ben-efit. There is one thing, certain, there has never been one built about here that did not benefit the city-" "And the road, too," put in Mayor Glenn

'don't forget to put that in.' "I have had some little to do with rail continued Captain Howell, "and I belied." are all getting along very well. I think this expression and this co-operation on the part of the people toward railroads and the disposition to treat them fairly is the best advertise ment to bring other people here to invest money. I say this: I have urged fair treatment of the railroads. We have no fight to make on any of them. I propose to treat them fairly and to do what I can to get them a fair showing, but when they treat the people of Atlanta and Georgia wrong I propose t sault the railroads and defend the people. "This railroad has been a pet scheme of mine for fifteen years. I was on that committee with Colonel Adair, and we and three others put up the money for the survey. We all understand that the section of country, the counties between here and that south Atlantic bottom, is the best agricultural region in the state of Georgia, We had occasion to make out a report, and I will not trust my memory to quote from it, but you will be surprised at the amount of cotton and corn and cattle those lands produce. There is no place in the universal world where the products amount to so much in money for the men at work. Everything from a blackberry and a watermelon to a bale of cotton can be made available and the only reason it is not so today is that they have not proper railroad facilities in some of the counties along this line. "I claim that Atlanta is the gate city. It was the gate city forty years ago and nothing since has deprived it of that distinction Every railroad coming south, I don't care is you start at San Diego, Cal,, and go by way of New York, heads toward Atlanta. Hunting ton with his great system pointing to Memphis, is headed for Atlanta, the purchase of the Rome and Deatur by the East Tennessee, was made for no other reason than to shorten the disance between Atlanta and Memphis ninetysix miles-and I speak by the card, for I am a lirector in the road. We go from here to Memphis without a single competitive town except Rome, and that is our ally. We flank Birmingham on one side and Chattanooga on the other side. These are the artificial advantages of Atlanta. Here are these roads north of us. All the roads that center at Cumberland Gap, the Baltimore and Ohio system-all these are looking even to cross the mnassable Alleghanies, and there are men here oday interested in a route by Asheville, but I believe that entrance will come by the Marietta and North Georgia. I only allude to these things to show that all these great systems, the Rock Island, Huntington's, Jay Gould's, and all the systems north of us are looking for connections towards the south Atlantic coast through Atlanta's gateway." ATLANTA DURING THE WAR.

"Let us go back a few years and look at Atlanta in the period of the war. There were two great centers in the south, Richmond Atlanta. Everything in this southwestern country was centered here. It was the fundamental and vital point of the confederate government. "I don't say how it happened, whether by uperior courage, military prowess or skill, but we were beaten. Everything was concentrated here to save Atlanta—and when General Hood retired he looked at the situation and saw that Atlanta was gone and there was nothing else in the country worth saving [Laughter.] He started back to the west, and Sherman was here, 300 miles from his basis of supplies. He wanted to get out, and where did he go? He didn't go to Mobile, or Charleston, or Norfolk. He went over this very track that you gentlemen propose to build a railroad over today. That was not accidental. He was not driven to that course. He was not pressed on this side or that. Our people were pressing to get out of the way. [Laughter.] He had the best scientific knowledge of this county. He absolutely knew the topography of those counties better than the people who lived there all their lives, because he had maps made by the best engineers, and I think it was owing to the engineering skill of his command and not to the courage of his soldiers that he beat us; but I may be a little prejudiced about that. [Laughter.] Hood was out of the way and he had to go back to meet Lee, 'because,' he said, 'we have done all the harm we could in Georgia when we destroyed Atlanta.' The survey maps were brought into requisition and upon their report Shernan went to Savannah to deep water. And they went to deep water just exactly as you propose to go to deep water and by identically the same route. "I am in favor of all the railroads we can have built to the state of Georgia, but they must be judiciously built, and the one that will pay in the end is the one which has best facility facilities, that is etween important and that have in view the objects and the ends of the country through which they go.

"I am interested in these other roads; I am interested more or less in every road that comes into this town; but I am interested in Atlanta more than in all of them. [Applause.] We can do nothing unless we advance the rosperity of our country, and for that reason am for this road." [Great applause.]

Mr. Hoke Smith's Views. Mr. Hoke Smith was next introduced by Mayor Glenn. He elicited a good deal of Mr. Hoke Smith was next introduced applause by saying he thought this road would be worth more than any two coming into At-

Mr. Smith said this was the most practical line that could be built in Georgia today. It was a line that would benefit Atlanta more than any other road that could be built. He referred to the fact that Atlanta had more than one outlet to the granaries of the west, but she had but practically one outlet to both one and the same, as they were controlled by the Richmond Terminal company. The new road would be a competitor, and would be a great benefit to both Atlanta and Savannah. He called to mind the agriculture and timber supplies that would be shipped and timber supplies that would be shipped. over the new line, and showed that the agri-galtural shipments alone for the first two-

the sea, the Central and the East Tennes thirds of the way would furnish an ample local business. He dwelt upon the point of the line being slxty miles shorter than any other between Ssvannah, the great southeastern port, and Atlanta, the great distrib-uting point. He asked what would prevent the line from paying handsomely at the start, if the other line, which is sixty miles longer, was earning 8 per cent.

He also said the fixed charges of the Central were three times what they would be on this road, and how under heaven could this road fail to pay when the other was making money. He did not see how it could help being a bo

He assured the eastern party that the peopl of Atlanta would take hold of the matter of terminal facilities and let them in, and then he told them that we didn't want to sell out for a profit of a couple of millions, but we wanted them to hold it so that those in Atlanta who helped to build it could enjoy some of its

Mr. Smith devoted a good deal of time to the question of terminal facilities. He said the Georgia, Carolina and Northern was under contract to a point within nineteen miles of Atlanta [ap plause] and had spent millions to get there. It had plenty of money to pay for terminal facilities here. He was advised that the Georgia Midland had money in the treasury to pay for terminal facilities in Atlanta, but was waiting till other coads would join it in getting such facilities here. As soon as that was settled they were ready to put on surveyors between Griffin and Atlanta. The Marietta and North Georgia road wanted terminal facilities and this road, the Middle Georgia and Atlantic, made the fourth that was seeking teminal facilities. They could combine, and pooling on a fair pro rata of the expense, could buy their terminal facilities

Or, he suggested, the people of Atlanta could form a terminal company and buy terminal facilities for all the roads seeking entrance

He then argued that, by the law of eminent lomain, the terminal facilities of any road belonged to the state for public uses, a fair compensation being paid the holder, and a road could no more hold its terminal facilities against the public convenience than the humblest citizen could hold his property in the outskirts of the city exempt from the law of eminent domain.

In closing, Mr. Smith said he took great leasure in joining in with Captain Howell and any other citizen in bidding the gentlen Godspeed in their great undertaking. Figures from Mr. Norcross

Mr. Jonathan Norcross then presented figures aken from a report of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association, to show the freight paid into Atlanta, His figures were as follows: Amount of freight received in Atlanta over various western routes, for year ending May 31st,

Mr. Herman Meyers, a leading Savannah merchant and president of the council, was next introduced. He had come not so much to discuss the practicability of the road, which would be shown at Savannah, but to invite the eastern gentlemen to Savannah and to assure them that they could get terminal facilities at moderate cost. He also invited the enterprising citizens of Atlanta to accom the capitalists in their visit to Savannah. He said the people of Savannah had nothing against the Central railroad, but it did not have to do the business Mr. William Garrard was introduced as

Savannah lawyer. He began by saying Savannah had great admiration for Atlanta as the commercial center of the south. Atlanta was the great inland gateway and Savannah the great ocean gate. If Atlanta were destroyed Savannah would be broke tomorrow. No city more sincerely rejoiced in Atlanta's prosperity than Savannah. The two cities prospered together, and there was no jealousy between them. When Savannah and Atlanta join hands, he said, there is nothing in Georgia which they could not accomplish

Mr. M. C. Kiser vas called on and said he paid about $20,000 per annum, on freight from the east. He thought the new road went through the best goods there for twenty years and had never lost any money-there. They were the best farmers and the best merchants that came to Atlanta.

was called on, as vice president of the Chamber of Commerce, to give evidence in regard to the amount paid out in Atlanta for freight.

He stated that Atlanta paid at least $2,000,000 year for freight.

The road which was sixty miles shorter than others would certainly command business from Atlanta merchants. With him the saving of Attanta inerctants.

Mr. Julius Brown the general counsel of the Western and At-lantic railroad, was introduced. He reviewed briefly the history of Savannah. When his father passed through the village of Marasville, an ex-school teacher on his way to Yale college, going on borrowed money, there vere only three or four houses and two or three stores here. He visited Washington city in the interval of college life, and called on John C. Calhoun, for whom he had great admiration. Mr. Calhoun asked him where he was going to settle. "At Canton," said Mr. Brown. Canton was then a town of 2,500 people. You go to Atlanta," said Mr. Calhoun, -Atlanta had just been named-"it will be the mmercial center of the south." Senator Brown went back to Canton, but ought a house in Atlanta of Sidney Root, on ime, at the close of the war. Mr. Brown then alluded to the present condition of Atlanta and its still rapid growth. He said his father had always thought a great deal of Savannah and had labored earnestly to get appropriations to deepen her harbor. Savannah was the great port of the south Atlantic, and Atlanta great inland city. It was highly important that they have a short line between.

He referred to his work in getting a charter for the East Tennessee, when he was oppose by General Alexander and others, and quoted his statement in 1881, that he believed the construction of |new roads benefited rather than injured the old ones. As sequel, he alluded to the growth of business on the Western and Atlantic, and said its tonnage was heavier than ever before, despite the competition of the East Tennessee The Western and Atlantic used to get the business coming from the south and west to Alabama, South Carolina and Florida. it divided the Florida business, did not haul a pound of Alabama or South Carolina business, et the growth of traffic gave it a heavier business than ever. The reduction of from 3 to 2½ cents had increased passenger business 100 per cent at some stations.

Mr. Cobb, of Boston, was then called on, and responded in a few happy remarks.

"A Sunday school talker once said to a school: 'What am I to talk about?' A little fellow replied: 'About a minute.' [Laughter.] And I think that the appropriate speech at this time would be about a minute long.

"Twenty-eight years ago it took us thirtysix months to get to Atlanta, where we were welcomed by bloody hands to hospitable graves. Now we came in thirty-six hours, and are met with the warm hand of hospitality outstretched to us. We grasp it with sympathy and affection.' [Applause.]
He concluded by saying that his party came to see and hear-not to talk. After they had verified-as they doubtless would-the statements made by Colonel Machen, they might have something to say.

On motion of Mr. Hoke Smith, a committee of seven was appointed to take into consider ation the question of terminal facilities. The following are the gentlemen: Hoke Smith W. A. Hemphill, M. C. Kiser, Aaron Haas, J. W. English, R. F. Maddox and George W Adair.

MR. ZACHRY'S REPLY.

McDonough, Ga., September 17.—Hon. M. A:
Cand'er and Others, Decatur, Ga. Gentlemen:
Your communication of the 15th instant containing resolutions, is before me.
In reply I have to say the democrats of my county presented my name to the convention, held for the purpose of nominating a candidate for senator of this district, and at being Henry's torsenator of this district, and being Henry's choice, under the rotation system, and she having acted in my behalf, that body unanimously nominated me. In acting for the people of the district, as their representative, I shall use my utmost endeavors to carry out their wishes. Up to this time I have not declared myself either for or against any one for the United States senate, and all reports to the contrary are untrue. I am ready upon this question; as upon all others, to do the will of the people; for my unbounded confidence in the intelligence of the people of our distrigt tells me that they will not instruct me to do a wrong act.

In order to ascertain the wishes of my constituency upon the subject in hand, as well as their views touching other questions, I shall, prior to views touching other questions, I shall, prior to the meeting of the general assembly, and most probably before the election in October, visit all of the counties composing the district, and spend several days in each of them.

As the resolutions you forwarded me seem to have been published, I deem it but proper that my reply should also be published, hence I send a copy to The Atlanta Constitutions, and you will much oblige me by seeing that it is inserted in your loads journals also. Yours truly,

CHARLES T. ZACHEY.

WIMBERLY IS BOUNCED.

A Colored Schoolteacher who Was a Politician.

Augusta, Ga., September 18.—[Special.]— There was an important meeting of the conference board of city trustees of the public schools this evening. Among the matters of interest brought before the board was a statement from the trustees of Bethel, colored, A. M. E. church. In this church the board has conducted, for the past eight years, a colored school taught by A. W. Wimberly. In their statements the Bethel trustees said that pupils of the school had broken windows and otherwise defaced the property, and that they no longer allow its use for school purposes. The board gave the matter full consideration, but were unable to find any suitable quarters for them. They, therefore, voted to quarters for them. They, therefore, voted to quarters for them. They, therefore, voted to suspend the school for the present, and directed Superintendent Evans to arrange places for the pupils in the two colored schools in the city of the same grade. This action of the board is received with general satisfaction, for Wimberly is a colored republican, who has not allowed his position as head of a school to keep him from paying constant attention to politics. He was to be the republican nomi-nee against Hon. Thomas E. Watson for congress, has taken an active interest in trying to gress, has taken an active interest in trying to secure Denning's appointment and confirmation as postmaster, and this morning published a card declaring that he would run for the legislature. A number of white citizens had resolved to get up a big petition to the board, requesting that they either ask for Wimberly's resignation or compel him to retire from all candidacy for other public office. They said that a white man would not be allowed to teach in the public schools and at the same time become a candidate before the recsame time become a candidate before the peo ple for any other position, and felt therefore that a colored man should be allowed no such privilege. The action of the board in suspending this school disposes of the matter in an amicable way, which meets the contingency.

The Winchester Rifle Does Its Work Again in Appling County-Simon Graham Kills His Pursuer

BAXLEY, Ga.. September 18.—[Special.]—Again has the deadly Winchester been brought into use, and the soil of Appling county stained with the blood of a human being. The particulars are as follows: Yesterday a young man by the name of Simon Graham, with a companion named David Carter, left here to go to the plantation of W. W. Graham, clerk of the court, to house the crops, the tenant on his place being named J. N. Snell.

READY FOR THE ROW.

He and the boy Simon had had a row previously in the town, for which both were fined by the mayor. This only enraged Snell the more, and he proceeded to make sundry threats as to what proceeded. the more, and he proceeded to make sundry threats as to what he would do, and tried to buy a rifle. Being a person of a bad reputation, having had several rows already, young Graham thought it best to carry his rifle with him for protection. When near the plantation, espying them, he left the cotton, natch and proceeded to the house to cotton patch and proceeded to the house to head them off. As soon as he came into the presence of Graham, he at once dashed forward and seized his rifle, lying across the saddle, with one hand, and trying to strike him with the other, and saying, "I suppose you are carrying this gun for me;" and would have wrested the gun away, but Graham's companion interfered, and told him to stop and let go of thet gran and let go of that gun.

THE FATAL BULLET. He then told Graham to let us leave here, and started off. Graham followed with a small following, cursing and abusing him for several yards along the public road. After crimination and recrimination between them, Snell called his wife to bring him his gun to shoot the d-n scoundrel, when Graham turned in his saddle and shot him, the ball passing just above the hips, killing him almost instantly. There were no eye witnesses to the tragedy.

HE WAS LYING DEAD. When assistance arrived Snell was lying dead with his gun beside him cocked for shooting. The circumstance is deplored by all, Graham having many relations in this county and others of considerable prominence. The citizens deeply deplore it, as this makes several killing scrapes which have blotted the history of our good county.

Macon, Ga., September 18.—[Special.]—It is not generally known, but nevertheless such is the case, that the term of Mr. J. W. Nisbet, the very popular and efficient clerk of the city court does not expire until September, 1891. The impression is that it would end January, 1891. It is generally understood that even though Mr. John P. Ross should succeed Judge Harris, he will reappoint Mr. Nisbet clerk. This is as it should be.

FARMS AND FARMERS.

SHORT TALKS WITH THE MEN WHO GUIDE THE PLOW.

Many Questions About the Farm Answered by Dr. W. L. Jones, Formerly of the Southern Cultivator.

Holding Cotton

Now that organization enables the farmers to act in concert, we think it good policy to hold their cotton back to some extent-not rush it upon the market-glutting the market, in and of itself, depresses prices. Just before new cotton comes in, and when the old crop has been pretty well consumed and stocks are low, prices are always high. As soon as the new crop begins to appear freely in market the price drops. Speculators buy when the price is thus depressed and profit by the increased price that comes later in the season. The farmers hold that the speculator is a super-fluity, an unnecessary factor in the case and should be gotten rid of; and we agree with them most thoroughly, whenever the farmers are in condition to hold their cotton. Somebody must carry a cotton crop say from Sep tember to September; it cannot all be manufactured in a day or a month, it is being worked up through the whole year. Either, therefore, the farmer or the manufacturer, or the speculator must carry a large quantity, whilst it is waiting to be manufactured. Which of the three should do it? We answer, the manufacturer and farmer. The manufacturer must lay in stock beyond his daily necessity. He cannot afford to put himself entirely at the mercy of other parties, who could then shut down his mill at any moment. The farmer cannot afford to hold all his cotton an indefinite period, because he needs money for current expenses and for other purposes. His policy, therefore, is to sell som from time to time, as fast as the mills call for it, and it is the policy of the mills to call for and buy some more than their daily demands require. If farmers and mill men pursued such a course, it is clear there would be no place for speculators.

The course heretofore pursued, to-wit: placing the bulk of the crop on the market as soon as it could be put in shape for market, forced manufacturers either to put themselves at the mercy of speculators, or buy up a year's supply and carry an immense load; whilst the farmer sold at the low price of a glutted mar-ket and was at the mercy of speculators, and this he will continue to be as long as he is in doubt, or is short of provisions and is forced to sell his cotton. Home independence is the only thing that will kill out the speculator. Abusing and crying out against him will never do it.

Another evil attending the glutting of the market in the fall, is that a very large amount of money is required to move the crop in so short a time-the result is money becomes scarce, and this decresses prices still farther. Under such circumstances, money kings can, by withdrawing money from circulation, depress the price of cotton at will and buy at their own figures. If the farmers were out of debt and had well filled barns, they would be the masters of the situation, and there would be no need for subtreasury or other plan to enable them to reap the full reward of their W. FARM QUESTION BOX.

Various Subjects on Which the Farmers Ask

Information. K. P.: Would say to those who have hogs that can stand on fore legs that citron or pie melons, cut up and given plentifully, will cure a hog intone day. Once I planted, as I supposed, water melons, they turned out to be citron, but our hogs profited by the mistake.

Dr. J. D. T., Williams Station, Ala: I am a close reader and ardent admirer of THE CONSTITUTION, think it is emphatically the people's paper, and in return for the many valuable suggestions I have received from it, I want to make one in regard to syrup making—in a small way. I know noth-ing about sugar making or sugar plantations, but I have had thirty year's experience in both cane or sorghum making, as conducted on many southern plantations, both with kettles and evaporators. I now use a 2 roller, 16 inch mill with a 14 inch face, and a 3x7 foot evaporator with a copper bottom, known in east Alabama as "Clegg" patent.

In addition to the above I have a deep box or vat with a copper bottom for finishing the syrup upon, after boiling nearly to the syrup stage on the evaporator. By this means I am enabled to test my syrup with a sacharometer and tell when it is syrup and not sugar. I use a box 22x32 inches, made of cypress lumber two inches thick; this I set on a small furnace. The advantages of the second boiler are these: It gives a uniform article of syrup that does not granulate, if carefully made, and any novice can use it. You can also double the capacity of your evaperator.

There is nothing new about the mill or evaperator, but if anyone else has used the second boiler I have never heard of it. In conclusion, allow me to thank you for the gallant stand you have made in defense of the southern people and their dearest rights. I think THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION has done more to preserve the rights of the south and save her people from federal oppression than all other agen cies combined. was born and raised in Merriwether county,

Ga., and feel proud of my native state [Please tell us what make of sacharometer you use, and the manner in which you decide that the juice has reached right stage for syrup and will not crystalize.-ED.] P. R., Abbeville, S. C: 1. I have about fifty acres 500 pounds of seed cotton per acre by using 150 nds guano to the acre. Now, I am thinking of breaking this land with a blue grass sulky plow some time between now and spring. I have had some experience in turning land with large plows and think I ruined a field once by turning over with two-horse plow and am afraid to try it again. How would it do to turn over thin soil with sulky 2. Would broadcasting 300 pounds cotton seed meal and acid phosphate pay, or break first and harrow in meal and acid with disc harrow. Which

3. Can a sulky plow be used to any advantage on land that has been turned? Would not each terrace have to be taken in one land to avoid turning so much?

4. Do you know if there is a subsoil attachment to the sulky plow?

5. Will one hand and two mules do as much work with sulky as two hands with single plows?

6. Do you advise use of the sulky plow in preparing land producing one-half bale to the acre?

1. When the soil is thin, a sulky plow may be guaged to run shallow, and not turn land over any deeper than ordinary one-horse plows.

It is not advisable to bring up too much raw clay to the surface, if the land is to be planted in plowed and hoed crops.

2. Do not know for what crop you propose to apply fertilizer, but if for cotton would not apply it this fall, but do so next spring and work it in soil with harrow.

I want to plant it in clover, but have heard that it would injure the orchard. Please inform me if this is so. Will rye injure the orchard, sowed late in fall or spring, and grazed or cut?

6. Yes, it does more satisfactory work than Unless land is extraordinarily rich it will be taxed to its full capacity to support ruit trees, when these are set out at usual distance apart. In addition to this, fruit trees need cultivation of the sell to make them grow and thrive, just as corn or cotton do. Such are the general facts. The following qualifications are admissible. When the trees are young and small they do not occupy the whole ground. Other crops, therefore, may be planted between the trees, if the latter are not crowded but allowed ample distance, and if these other crops are highly manured, so that when the crops are removed they will not take off the land more than is restored to it in shape of manure. In the next place a crop of peas, that is sown in summer, after the trees have completed their main growth, and which mature, die and are plowed under before the trees begin growth again, are admissible for enriching an orchard. But with these exceptions no crop should ever be planted in an orchard. When trees are grown no crop, except one to be plowed under for benefit of land, should ever be planted in an orchard. We will add, however, that it is better to plant a crop like otton or corn in an orchard, so the trees will get the benefit of cultivation, than to neglect an orchard entirely and allow weeds and grass to take possession and banish the plow from it. Rye or any small grain is objectionable in an orchard because it draws upon the soil in spring just when the trees make their heaviest demand upon it also.

T. H. S., Newberne, N. C; A fine horse is in bad health. About five years ago he was plowed in a very miery marsh and was plowed very hard. We think he was overheated and since that time he has failed to ball his food. Please give treatment

He has been drayed very hard for the last two years and is a little sprung in front legs and has a stiffness in them; also, appears to be sore, and limps sometimes as if there might be a nail in foot but there cannot be anything found in it.

Your horse needs rest. He should be allowed to run on pasture for several months, and do no work at all. If you cannot allow this, put him on a course of tonics, consisting of a drachm each of copperas and gentian, night and morning, and feed him chiefly on shelled

J. A. M., Kirk's Grove, Ala: Can you tell me any remedy for a horse afflicted as follows: For six years there has been a sore on his back near the spine, it has a gristly substance growing in it at times, which has been taken out at several different times. The sore would heal very nicely, but the skin and gristle will not unite and consequently the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge a mall some to begin which where the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge a mall some to begin which where the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will converge the least rubbing or sweating from riding will be reconstructed by the rubbing of the least rubbing or sweating from riding will be reconstructed by the rubbing of the rubbing will cause a small sere to begin which repeats itsely as before. In the sore appears flesh resem-bling proud flesh, which is gathered in bunches; also pus collected in strings instead of the general way in which it collects. He eats heartily and is not injured in any other way. At one time I could see two joints of his back bone. I have used remedies which would partly cure, but no affect a permanent cure.

For three weeks pursue the following treatment: Give daily a teaspoonful of sulphite of soda; also a drachm each of copperas and gen tian with five grains of powdered spanish fly At the end of three weeks pour ten drops of sulphuric acid in opening of sore, do this once a day until it ceases to discharge and looks dry, after this apply daily a solution of one drachm of sulphate of zinc to four ounces of water. Feed very generously, especially on threshed

N. N. M., Stone Mountain, Ga: I have a horse that has a splint on his leg, it came about this time last year, only lamed him awhile. It seems to hurt him now and is growing larger. Is there any remedy for it, and does it affect horses? It is about one and one-half inches below the kneed joint. Please give remedy if any.

Splint often causes lameness for a while, but this generally disappears in a short time, and no serious results follow, except the disfiguration. Treatment consists in blistering the swelling with biniodide of mercury. May have to be repeated several times at intervals

J. Z. C., Nebraska, Ark: I have a horse eight years old that has been lame in right hind leg for two months. The trouble seems to be in stifle joint; have done nothing for him yet; may be strained. Will you be so kind as to give me a remedy that will cure him.

Cannot suggest treatment unless the cause of lameness is definitely known. You do not state what is, and it is probable that you are mistaken in its location. The stifle joint is rarely the seat of trouble, the hock is the weak point in the hind leg and is usually the seat of trouble when any exists. See if there is heat or tenderness anywhere in leg, beginning at hoof and going upward. If you can find the probabilities are the difficulty is in hock, and treatment should consist in blistering it on front and inside with biniodide of mercury.

J. C., Lotus, Ga: I have a young mare about five years old. Three years ago she got hurt. I suppose she must have been kicked by a mule or was forced against a sharp rail. Since then her elbow, near the joint, has been very bad. When she is not used for some time, she gets so she can walk without limping, but when worked, even for a short while, can hardly put her foot to the ground. Do you think she can be cured? Per-baps she is sweeneyed. Am at a loss to know what is the matter with her. The place is badly swollen now and extends across the breast. The shoulder is shrunken.

The first thing to do is to ascertain if there is any pus present, and if so to make an incision and let it out. Then inject a half tablespoonful of tincture into the cavity daily for three or four days. If there is no pus, simply a low grade of inflammation of the parts, rub freely every second day with a mixture of sweet oil two parts, and creosote and turpentine each one part. Rub in well. Keep animal at rest during treatment.

H. G. L., Plantersville, Ala: I have a horse four years old that got his left fore leg hurt in the knee joint. I can't tell how it was done; the ne-gro that plowed him said that he stumbled when coming down a hill. I discovered the next morning that he was very lame, the knee swoller considerably. I have used all the remedies that I could think of. I continued to plow him some, he did not get much worse. Since I stopped plowing he has got worse. I saw your remedy for similar cases (biniodide mercury.) Blistered it twice and cut it with my knife, it discharged some matter—came in small lumps. The knee is swollen very much and does not put that foot on the ground, drags it mostly; has fallen off very much. Please tell me something to do for him. Some tell me that his knee cap is out of place though there is no sign of it.

Your horse should have had entire rest as soon as his knee got injured. After applying cold water freely for some days, by wrapping knee in cloths and wetting them every or oftener during the day, and taking them off at night, then it would have been in order to blister. Cutting into swellings about joints is dangerous. Nothing can be done now but to give horse rest and blister the part repeatedly with biniodide of mercury. The case is not

C. A. McM., Eau Gallie, Fla: Please tell me hov to destroy Bermuda grass. It has been growing for eighteen months and I wish to eradicate it. If on damp soil it is next to impossible to eradicate Bermuda. In such case the only thing to be done is to shade it by continu growth of something on the land that will grow thick and tall and smotherit. Cow peas alternating with rye or oats, for instance. On well drained uplands it may be killed during hot, dry spells in summer by plowing and harrowing and bringing the grass to the surface where it may dry up and die. The plowing and harrowing will have to be repeated several times, when the weather is favorable.

W.F., Newbern, N. C: Referring to answer to my querry in THE CONSTITUTION of August 19th, about the cut on my mule's leg, will say that the lower part or heel string that was cut has project-ed out from fetlock in shape of a teat. If this teat remains as it is will it mat cause this fetlock to be a very large joint? Hadn't I better cut it.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPTEMBER 19, 1890.

The Fifth Congressional District. In the communication which we printed yesterday from Mr. George S. Thomas, we find the following remarks: Your reporter will remember that I told him that, in my opinion, the chances for the success of any good republican who could command the confidence and respect of the voters, and at the same time secure the earnest, active and substantial support of the leaders and managers of the party machinery in this district, seemed bright and favorable in this cam-

Now, although the construction of the foregoing is somewhat muddled, being intended, as it seems, to take the reader's breath away, it is somewhat interesting. In spite of the muddle, Mr. Thomas's meaning is not to be mistaken. He is of the opinion that if the right kind of a republican is nominated in this district his chances of success will be very bright and favorable.

The only interpretation that can be put on these remarks is that Mr. Thomas believes that there is enough trouble and dissatisfaction among the democrats of this district to induce many democratic voters to support the republican candidate. This is the inference to be drawn from the paragraph which we have quoted; but if Mr. Thomas and his friends have any idea that democrats can be found who will vote for the republican candidate, they will find themselves grievously disappointed when the votes are counted.

We have heard it hinted that there are some tremendous charges hanging over the head of Colonel Livingston, the democratic candidate, and the republicans seem to be waiting for an explosion. The whole trouble seems to be that there are a few democrats who do not admire Colonel Livingston. He is an active and an aggressive man, and such a man is bound to make enemies as he goes along. Fortunately, however, enemies made in this way do not amount to a row of pins. This has been our observation and experience.

Colonel Livingston is now the democratic candidate for congress in this district. He won the nomination after a heated contest in a perfectly fair and legitimate way. He broke down all opposition, was left in the field a victor and was unanimously nominated. There can be no doubt that he is the choice of an overwhelming majority of the democratic voters of the district. The contest that he made was perfectly fair and open. He met his opponent on the stump, and he demonstrated that he was fully the equal of Judge Stewart in debate. If there were any charges hanging over him, the proper place to make them was in the contest before the primaries. By his attitude and position he invited criticism from all quarters. He made a vigorous and a winning campaign, and no charges were brought against him and no attack made on his personal character. The tendency to bring forward vague charges at this time is less an attack on Colonel Livingston than on the democrats who have made him their standard bearer. When he was making the campaign for the nomination he represented only himself and his worthy ambition to represent this district in congress. He made a successful campaign, and, having won the nomination fairly and squarely, he now represents the democratic party. The campaign that he made was not a hasty one. On the contrary, it was as thorough and as complete as it could possibly be. He appeared at all the prominent points in the district, and was heard by every democratic voter who took an interest in the contest. There was plenty of time and ample opportunity for his opponents to bring for ward the charges of which we now hear vague intimations. Having failed to make them when they had the opportunity, those who now come forward with in sinuations are merely trying to damage the democratic party. It is the party, and not Colonel Livingston, that is on trial in this district, and it is the pledged duty of those who believe in the party to give its candidate their hearty and enthusiastic support.

After a personal conference with Colo nel Livingston, THE CONSTITUTION is satisfied that he is not a candidate for United States senator, and that he will not be. It is true that he refused to sign a letter announcing that he would not be a candidate, which overzealous friends of Governor Gordon tried to drag out of him; but any man of spirit would have acted just as he did.

From the very first, Colonel Livingston has said to his friends that he was not and would not be a candidate for senator, but that he would not be driven into making an announcement of the fact by men who were striving to force it from him in order to carry out their bear on a democratic nominee to compe him to support any man or men, or accept the alternative of opposition, is not only undemocratic, but outrageous. It is not only carrying political intrigue to a vicious extreme, but it is introducing into politics a system of personalism that is more in keeping with republican politics than with democratic methods.

The great principle on which democratic party is based, and which has given it such power and influence in the land, is expressed in its motto: "Measures, not men." This fact should be borne steadily in mind by all democrats Democratic Harmony.

It should be the desire of every good citizen in this state to maintain democratic harmony. It is the salvation of our people, and the only safety of our institutions. If the democratic party becomes demoralized and indifferent, we will drift into evils that the reconstruction period will be mild compared to what will follow. We have only to call atten tion to the animus that moves the repub licans in proposed measures before congress at the present session intended to embarrass and humiliate our people to give us ground to warn our people agains any division in our ranks. To interfere or attempt to subvert a regular democratic nomination unless there is fraucand corruption in it, is to weaken and ruin the party. To make unnecessary and unreasonable demands of a good man because he will not commit himself on an election in which it is his sworn duty to exercise his best judgment for his people or when called on to vote, is undemocratic, unjust and wrong. We are led to make this comment on account of the recent action of a meeting of citizens in DeKalb county, who appointed a committee to wait on Colonel C. T. Zachry, the democratic nominee of the thirty-fourth senatorial district, charged with the duty to ascertain whom he intended to vote for for United States senator.

We have waited to hear more about this matter, but have been unable to ascertain what has been done. Colonel Zachry tells this committee that he will not say, or that he will not vote for the choice of that committee. Are we to understand that it is their purpose to put a candidate in the field if Colonel Zachry's answer does not suit this committee, or is it an empty threat to try and make him commit himself? In either event it is a great wrong on the democratic party, because he is the nominee of the party. We do not know Colonel Zachry's mind on the subject of senator; we have heard no expression of opinion from him. We do know that he is one of the truest men in the state. There is not a more gallant man in any state. When his peo ple needed his services in the field he was found in the front rank, and was among the first to get there. His gallantry received the commendation of General Lee. He is a man of integrity and great firmness, and that he will do what he thinks is right no man will deny who knows him.

What we protest against is the effort to commit him on anything when the convention that nominated him did not deem it necessary or proper.

We wish to call attention to these facts, d warn our people that such pre

Mr. Blaine Once Mcre.

Mr. Blaine is still on deck, and still continues to fight for his celebrated reciprocity attachment to the tariff bill, which, being tersely interpreted, means high protection for eastern manufacturers, and free trade for western producers. It is a scheme which, to use the expressive phrase of the Florida fisherman, "Ketches 'em a-comin' an' a-gwine," providing tight-fitting collars for the lead horse, and very loose harness for the off mule.

To show that he is not weary in well-doing, Mr. Blaine has written another letter, which he has addressed to Editor Clapp, of The Boston Journal, selecting him, it would anpear, because, as his name indicates, he is more or less a son of thunder in high protection circles. In this letter Mr. Blain points out the fact that New England is to receive in the new tariff the amplest protec tion for every manufacturing industry within her borders, both great and small, and he says that, in his judgment, it will be both nexpedient and injurious for representatives to disregard a measure which will promote western interests.

He then goes on to remark that he has re cently received a letter from Mr. Imbs. of St. Louis, a leading miller of the west and president of the recent millers' convention at Minneapolis, in which he says that late adrices from Cuba state that the duties now collected on American flour are at a higher rate than was at first supposed to be the case Commenting on this, the secretary of state remarks that with reciprocity the west can annually sell many hundred thousand barels of flour in Cuba and Porto Rico, with a large mass of other agricultural products but that without reciprocity she will be driven more and more from those markets. Mr. Blaine then goes on to say:

Giving the fullest protection to all eastern in-terests, as the proposed tariff bill does, surely no nan of good judgment, certainly no protectionist of wise forecast, wishes to expose a western interest to serious injury, especially when it is manifestly easy to protect it and promote it—manifestly easy because, at this very time, the boards of trade, the chambers of commerce and the pub-lic opinion in Havana are demanding reciproca trade with the United States. I select Cuba and Porto Rico for examples because in certain quarters it has been said that while we might sequarters it may been said that will we might secure reciprocity with some little countries in South America, we could do nothing with the Spanish islands. Let us at least give the Spanish islands an opportunity to speak for themselves.

Certain wise men ask: How can we sell farm products in South America when the same thi products in South America when the same things are produced there? Cereals are undoubtedly grown in the southernmost parts of South America, but the wise men will remember that cereals and sugar do not grow in the same soil, and that the sugar countries of South and Central America and the West India islands contain 40,000,000 of people; the import the largest part of their breadstuffs. Indeed, the largest part of the sugar product of Latin America is at our doors, and we can greatly enlarge our exchanges there if compersonal ends. To bring a pressure to can greatly enlarge our exchanges there it congress will give us the opportunity for reciproc

Another class observe that they want time to study the system. To this I might reply that the best method of studying a system is to observe its practical workings. While studying in the ab-stract and refusing to take some object lessons, these gentlemen propose to open our market to Latin American products free of all charge, without asking Latin America to give us in turn some freedom in their markets. The object lesson immediately before us is the treatment of the sugar question. Shall we make Latin America a gift of that trade? When we have studied that lesson we shall be prepared for the second.

The w.r.st proposition of all is put forth by those who say, "Let us put sugar on the free list now, and next year we will take up the subject of reciprocity." If I understand their logic, it is to make sugar free this year without condition, and next year to ask Spain if she will not kindly consent to grant us reciprocal tade. Holding the complete we shall be prepared for the seco grant us reciprocal trade. Holding the complete vantage ground themselves, the proposed policy transfers the vantage ground to Spain. Instead of granting a favor to Spain today, we are to ask her for a favor tomorrow. Those who take this ground elong to that class of careful guardians erty who prepare a very strong lock for the stable after the horse is gone. I do not mean in anything I have said to imply that reciprocity is only a western interest. As I remarked in a note to Senator Frye, it will prove beneficial and profitable both to the farm and the ore just than that in giving a free market he United States to hides from the Argentine re public, we should ask the Argentine republic to nany forms in which our business interests wil be promoted by reciprocity cannot be known until the active commercial men of the United States shall have developed those forms by investigation and experience. We shall not realize the full benefit of the policy in a day or a year; but shall we in addition to the sixty millions we have alread hrown away, and then ignorantly declare, without trial, that the system won't work?

It will be observed that Mr. Blaine is very nuch in earnest in this business. He ha heard the news from the west. He has heard how the farmers, who have nothing to protect, and on whom the tariff tax finally falls. are moving away from the republican ideas that have their nidus and breeding place in the east. In this, Mr. Blaine seems to be good deal smarter than the rest of the republican leaders, but he will have to be ever smarter than he is to deceive the western farmers with his reciprocity scheme after the alliance gets through with its educational work.

Nevertheless, the scheme, viewed merely as a political makeshift, is a very beautiful one. It will take a proud place among the curious fungi of a highly fertilized mind. Mr. Blaine's idea is that if the republican party can provide a high-protection crutch for the manufacturers of the east and a free trade truss for the farmers of the west, the republican party can manage to hobble along for another year of two. Meanwhile, there are other republican brethren who are not to be convinced, and among them may be found Speaker Tom Reed and his tremendous belly-

AN EDITORIAL AMBLE.

The front page of The LaGrange Graphic is always interesting. Whether the reader is in search of love, agriculture or politics, he wil always find it there.

The fall season brings with it a rise in the editor's pocket. The first thing a true-blue allianceman does when he sells his cotton is to make a subtreasury of his home editor.

The Jackson Argus sings the song of the eason thus:

The autumn leaves begin to fall, The darkey gets the nick; And at the house do babies squall. For cotton is to pick.

Of course such a domestic-minded editor is man of peace, as evidenced by a sensible paragraph in another column, in which he says: We have no time, nor place, nor occasion for division of sentiment or division of interest amo the people of Georgia. Let every man, forgetting himself, remember the state; every man build up himself, by building up the state; every man honor nimself by honoring the state, until every field shall be fertile with fatness; every man an intelli-gent citizen; every community a picture of thrift, and the state, the whole state, presenting the per-fection of government and an ideal, prosperous and happy people.

Editor Underwood has renewed the crusad gainst dogs. He invested recently in a pet lamb, which explains why he is crying out so vigorously for "protection." ' Commenting on ent, The Albany News says: his new movement, The Albany Items and The yaller dog is an unknown quantity in Georgia politics, and members of the legislature will not tread on his tail if they can avoid it.

In the same batch of items is also one in regard to West End academy. He says: "There are 180 pupils in the school this year." Last year there were 297 pupils enrolled, and only a little more than half that number are in attendance this year. There has been no decrease of the number of children of proper school ages—in fact, there are more now in West End than ever before. Why this falling off? BEPLIES TO THE RECENTLETTER OF GOVERNOR GORDON.

And Reiterates His Opposition to the Candla Opposed to the Subtreasury Bill.

CONYERS, Ga., September 18.—Editor Constitution: In reply to the card of Governor Gordon published in your issue of the 16th inst., I will say, that it was never my intention to misrepresent any man. I always deem it best to deal in facts, and we will let these matters be settled by the jury that the governor tried us before in Rockdale. Let the governor state what he did say, and we are let the jury, as he calls it, try the case as to phraseology and meaning by the evidence as taken down. If the verdict of the jury does not sustain the charges, then we will conform to the verdict.

I have always fought for Governor Gordon's political success in this country heretofore, and ne had no truer friend in the state than my self, or stronger advocate, until he declar nimself oppose the farmers are struggling for relief. I have never uttered a word against Governor Gora don's fair name. I have said, and I reiterate it, that I am opposed to him for senator, he cause he was opposed to the subtreasury plan-For this opposition he came to my home and me as being against hi arraigned the place of another for myself. He drew the line—we did not. He denounced those open posing his candidacy as wanting positions for nemselves, and handled our leaders with gloves off, as reported in every speech that he trymen," what a whale!

You will pardon me for taking issue with the governor on this question, but we see no means of relief for the middle and common classes of people, except through the principle contained n the subtreasury plan.

You can speak of free coinage of silver and issuing of greenbacks, but how is it to reach the people. What are millions of money worth to the farmers unless they can get it. As it now stands the money has to come through national banks. Can a farmer borrow fr these banks? No, their charter prohibits real estate security. Their charters cannot be repealed, unless the national government should be guilty of repudiation, for about four years ago they were extended for twenty years. Then what are we to do in the premises? Lands, the foundation of governments, the footstool of the Lord of all, will survive cyclones and floods, will remain when cities, bonds and stocks as consumed by fire; this great reservoir of all wealth is outlawed and rejected by men who pretend to represent the people. Where then is there hope for the millions of people that are toiling and struggling against combinations, syndicates, plutocrats, shylocks and all legalized gambling? for they all have the assent and consent of the government as it is now administered.

We believe that the principle in the subtreasury plan is the only and last resort; the inchor of this government, the only channel through which money can be obtained by the great middle class, the toiling masses. This great scheme for the good of the people will bring the necessary relief. If so, it is constlutional and should not be denounced.

Will the people of Georgia support for United States senator a man who is opposed to this measure of relief? Can they afford to sacrifice principle for sentiment, or measures for men? For one we answer never, and it is for this reason that I am opposed to Governor Gordon for United States senator.

AN INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE TO BE PUT OUT IN ROCKDALE. The Meeting Testerday at Conyers so De-eldes Judge A. C. McCalla Will Likely Be the Man.

CONVERS, Ga., September 18 .- [Special.]-

The die is east!

An independent democratic candidate will be run in Rockdale county.

He will be pledged to vote for General Gordon for the United States senate, and upon that issue the fight will be made to the finish.

The applicans—the negroes the finish. The republicans—the negroes, that is, for not half a dozen white men in Rockdale are blican in local politics—hold a meeting next Friday, September 26th.

Encouraged by the division amongst the white people, it is generally expected that the negroes will put a candidate of their own in the race and work to win. they will endorse the independent candidate. The determination to run an independent candidate was formally expressed, and a method of procedure adopted, at a meeting held here in the courthouse today. This is the call under which the meeting

NOTICE TO VOTERS.

Every voter who opposes boycotting, and is opposed to the subtreasury scheme and in favor of General John B. Gordon for the United States seate, is requested to meet at the courthouse at Convers, at 11 o'clock a. m. Thursday next, September 18th, to consult about the political situation, and to put out a candidate to oppose the alliance candidate for the legislature, the a'liance candidate being in favor of the subtreasury geneme, and having refused to answer the question whether or not he is in favor of General Gordon for the senate.

This September 15, 1890.

The call was not signed. It was issued from the press of The Rockdale Banner. Inquiry at that office, as to the authorship of the paper, was met with the declaration that nobody was at liberty to tell anything about it.

A SMALL CROWD.

Sometime before 11 o'clock, the time set for the meeting, it became painfully evident that very few people were taking stock in the movement. A small group of gentlemen, all known to be in sympathy with it, lingered near the courthouse as that hour arrived, and passed by, with a heavy persistency that sug-gested uncertainty rather than enthusiasm, discussing the situation.

The courthouse door was thrown open at a

From which it may be correctly inferred that Judge G. W. Gleaton, a well-known at-torney, was relied upon as a leader in the ent; the holding of the meeting and its results depending largely upon his presence.

Fifteen minutes after the train came from Covington the meeting was called to order in the courthouse. The room was about half filled. From first to last, following the count of a Gordon man in the audience who is personally acquainted with every man pre there were seventy-five people in the hall. Eleven of these lived outside of the county nine were republicans; fifteen were straightont alliancemen, present as mere lookers-on. The seventy-five included white and black, old and young, newspaper representatives and

The meeting was called to order by Judge G. W. Gleaton. He read the call, as explaining the object of the meeting, and moved that Mr. W. W. Swann be made chairman. Mr. J. R. Maddox was made secretary.

Judge A. C. McCalla, the present able repre sentative of Rockdale, in the house, explained briefly the object of the meeting. While the crowd was small, he said that were many present in spirit who were not present in

Then the democratic executive committee was ignored and a new execu-tive committee substituted to suit the alliance. Frank McDaniel and I are good friends, but I protest against the manner in which he has been brought out."

ANOTHER LAWYER. Colonel A. M. Helms, an attorney, arose

after another pause in the proceedings.

Colonel Helms began by declaring that he had no eye to his own political preferment. "If I had," he added, "I would have to leave Rockdale county to attain it, for mine is a proscribed profession. There are three distinct parties here—the democratic, the republican and the alliance. I am going to vote and work with the democratic party. I am opposed to the

*It may be objected, so far as my remarks go, that I have voted the independent ticket in the past. So I have. But I am consistent. The same principles that controlled me then control me now, for I voted what I believed to be the choice of the people. If Mr. McDaniel had submitted his candidacy to a fair vote of the democracy of the county, I doubt if he would have been the county.

ANOTHER LAWYER.

Colonel A. C. Perry, another member of the local bar, spoke next.

"Fellow citizens," he began, "It would be one of the proudest acts of my life to cast the vote of this county for John B. Gordon. [Great applause.] I endorse the principles of the alliance, and as for myself I have no objection to their secret meetings, but I object to the way things have been done is this county, and so the way things have been done is the county, the way things have been done is this county, and so far as Perry is concerned I call a halt. [Applause.] The alliance is in the democratic Party, fellow citizens, no doubt about that. But the democratic party is not inside the alliance, and it can't get inside. [Applause.] Some of the best friends I had four years ago, and two years ago, are inside the alliance now, and I couldn't touch 'em with a forty-foot pale. [Applause.] In '61, fellow-citizens, the call was upon all men alike—lawyers were not excluded then. No class was proscribed. No-body in the war wanted to do all the warring. [Applause.] We all know that Gordon could have been elected by keeping his mouth shut, but he is as brave now as he was in war, and he is an honest man. [Applause.] Call us. 'straight-outs' and 'independents' if you will; I feel that I am standing now where I always

"I agree," said Judge McCalla, "with the sentiments of this meeting, as expressed in the call, and in the remarks that have been made here. I am against the boycott. I am against the subtreasury. I am for General Gordon for Each of these propositions was explained at some length. Judge McCalla expressed his gratification that he should be named the standard bearer; but declared that he was with the movement as a matter of principle and not for his personal advantage. In expressing this he used a peculiarly unfortunate phraseology. "If," said he, "there's any other sheep around here anxious to be sacrificed. I'll fall in with the shears and help sacrifice him." The mere spectator of the minority took this literally and seemed to enjoy it.

Judge McCalla did not believe that any nomination should be made then and there, but proposed and explained a plan embodied these resolutions:

these resolutions:
Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting that the boycott proposed by certain overzealous, would-be reformers should be opposed; that the right to buy, sell and use any and everything not illegal or detrimental should be guaranteed to a liberty loving people. That the subtreasury scheme should be condemned as unbusiness-like and visionary. That our gallant leader, the grandest living exponent of the lost cause, and a friend of humanity and opponent of oppression everywhere of whatever race or condition should succeed Hon. Joseph E. Brown as United States senator, and we of whatever race or condition should succeed Hon. Joseph E. Brown as United States senator, and we hereby pledge the gallant Gordon our influence, and that we will not vote for our choice on the forest representative from this county who refuses to pledge himself to vote for our choice on the liberal free-for-all platform on which he stands uncovered before his countrymen.

Resolved, further, That a committee of five be appointed by this meeting to confer with Hon. W. F. McDaniel to find out and report whether or not he will abide by the request of this body.

It is further resolved, That a committee of five from each militia district in this county be appointed to take immediately such further action as they may deem just and expedient to promote the objects and purposes of this meeting, and we hereby mutually promise and pledge ourselves and our constituency to ratify and endorse the the action of our said committee, when promulgated. The said committee of twenty is fully empowered to formulate a platform in accordance with the principles herein set forth, and to select a candidate to represent the people of Rockdale on these issues, and place him before the country at the election on the first Wednesday in October next.

JUDGE GLEATON AGAIN.

JUDGE GLEATON AGAIN. Judge Gleaton was in favor of making a nomination at once. The sentiment was loudly applauded. He thought there had been time enough wasted, and that Judge McCalla was

"I don't care," said he, "if the other side has a majority—for one I will protest. [Applause.] Frank McDaniel is a good, clever nan, but if it hadn't been for the alliance he never would have been thought of as the alliance nominee. But for this secret organization there is no doubt that Judge McCalla would have been his own successor. That's the custom in this county and of the democratic party. I'm in favor of having the race, and of beating if we can. If we don't elect our man we'll

COLONEL PERRY AGAIN.

Colonel Perry arose again. He paid an eloquent tribute to General Gordon's gallantry and war record, speaking at some length.

He was in favor of putting out a candidate at once, but in defference to Judge McCalla's wishes he would withdraw his nomination and upport the resolutions.

The secretary, Mr. J. R. Maddox, offered substitute resolution, but subsequently with-drew it to support Judge McCalla's plan. Judge Gleaton insisted that the sense of the neeting was for a fight-a nomination then and there. The alliance motto seemed to be, "you'll be damned if you don't and you'll be damned if you do," and he was tired of begging and parleying with them.

Mr. J. E. Maddox spoke for an immediate "I'm for McCalla first, but if he's too bashful to face the music, let's have Judge McCalla declared again that he was not reaching out after honors, but that he was in sympathy with the meeting. His talk left the impression that if his method was adopted, and resulted—as it must have—in a refusal of Mr. McDaniel to subscribe, that then if the honor were pressed upon him he would reluctantly consent.

Mr. Jim Scott, of Newton, spoke briefly, declaring his sympathy with the purposes of "I want," was the keynote, "to send a man there that will vote for Gordon." JUDGE M'CALLA'S PLAN ADOPTED. The resolutons introduced by Judge McCalla

The committee found the nominee, Mr. McDaniel, at his home about two miles from Conyers, picking cotton. He received them courteously.

GORDON'S LETTER

HAS NOT YET REACHED COLONEL NORWOOD,

And Therefore the Latter Has Not Yet Prepared His Answer Thereto-The Probability of His Candidacy.

SAVANNAH, Ga., September 18 .- [Special.] Early this morning, and again late tonight, Colonel Norwood was asked what reply he had to make to Governor Gordon's conditional agreement to a joint debate.

AWAITING THE GOVERNOR'S LETTER. "I cannot say anything," he replied, "for I have not yet received the letter from Governor Gordon, which the papers stated he had written, and which I was advised privately he mailed yesterday. Until I see the letter it would not be proper for me to indicate my reply."

WILL SPEAK IN ATLANTA. It is believed here that Colonel Norwood will speak somewhere, probably in Atlanta, to answer the charge of demagogism which the governor made.

THE SPEECH IN BULLOCH. Colonel Norwood's speech in Bulloch county yesterday enthused the alliance to a tremendous degree, and he was given a great ovation. Advices received here state that there is great ground swell setting in in his favor through the middle of the state. His analysis of the governor's warehouse plan laughed it out of sight yesterday. Mr. Norwood asked the alliance what promise did they find in Governor Gordon's business transactions that he can devise a bet ter scheme than the subtreasury plan. "Let us see," he said, and he read a report of his plan for relief of the farmers made in a speech at Decatur in which Gordon presents two measures of relief. "The first, to issue bonds of $50 or $100 bearing a low rate of interest not to exceed 2 per cent, which should be sold at par and their value fixed by law. Here is a Wall street scheme, issuing bonds for Wall street to buy. How could the government prevent a bond selling below par or above par after it gets into individual hands. He would make bonds interchangeable for treasury notes at once, as the sub-treasury plan calls for, and save interest, even if it is only 2 per cent. His second measure of relief is to build one great warehouse on the coast big enough to accommodate the entire crop of Georgia. Georgia's crop in round numbers is a million bales. If you make the calculation you will find that by placing these bales two rows wide, end to end, piling them twelve to fourteen feet high, you would have to build a warehouse over seventy miles long. If you allow passage-ways for drays to enter and turn and lay these tiers of cotton side by side with a passage-way between, Gov-ernor Gordon's warehouse would be a mile long and a mile wide. The laughter of the alliance at the governor's warehouse proposition was simply uproarious.

"With this warehouse he intends to do away with 10,000 samplers, 1,000 repositories and all the middle men, which includes commission merchants, of course. how many watchmen will it take to guard a warehouse over four miles around and with a mile square piled inside? What company would insure 1,000,000 bales of cotton nassed together? How many fire companies would you have to pay to protect it? How many agents to receive and deliver the cotton? And yet this is Governor Gordon's best argument as a business man in devising a substitute for your subtreasury plan."

Norwood in Bulloch. Norwood in Bulloch.

Statesboro, Ga., September 19.—[Special.]
The alliance of this county had a big rally yesterday. Hon. T. M. Norwood made a long speech, lauding the alliance, and went for Gordon with gloves off.

Mr. J. A. Brannen withdrew from the race for representative, and Jasper Wilson took the field against the alliance candidate.

Governor Gordon has been invited to come down and take some of the hide off of Macune and others. Things are getting warm.

Governor Gordon Talks.

"Mr. Norwood in his speech at Statesboro."

"Mr. Norwood in his speech at Statesboro," said Governor Gordon last night, "criticizes what he calls my plan for one great warehous on the coast. This is another of the many great misrepresentations made about me in this remarkable campaign. That his sugges-tion, which will be published in full in a few days, embraces the erection of as many ware-houses as may be required and wherever most needed—these warehouses to be erected and owned by the alliance."

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., September 18.—[Special.]—Politics was the absorbing topic court week. Of the eighty-one empaneled jurors at this term, not a dozen were Pickett men. Winn is strong in every portion of the county and if election day is a favorable one and if a full vote is polled, he will carry Gwinnett by 1,500 majority. The talk that Pickett will push him in this county is mere bosh. Pickett did not make a single vote by his abusive harangue here and lost many. He left the county with his tail curled. Jackson county in a full vote will give Winn 1,500 majority; Hall 1,250, and Banks 750. This is a safe estimate if the elements on election day are favorable. This gives Winn a majority of

Among politicians some talk was indulged in regarding the absence of Mr. Sessions. It was said that he had pulled out from the Todd element, and had bid good-bye to the executive

This, however, was denied by Mr. Frank Arnold, chairman of the committee. He stated that to the best of his knowledge Mr. Sessions was still a member of the executive Sessions was still a member of the executive committee—that he was so considered by the other members of the committee, and he believed that Mr. Todd regarded him as still on the committee. Mr. Frank Arnold was made chairman of the committee, and Mr. Freisleben, secretary.

The only business of the meeting of any consequence was the authorizing of Chairman Arnold to issue an address to the people. This address, which will be prepared today, Mr. Arnold stated, would be in brief an appeal to the democratic voters of the thirty-fifth district to stand by the nominee, the Todd comtrict to stand by the nominee, the Todd committee, of course, contending that Mr. Todd is the regular nominee.

The committee adjourned subject to the chairman's call. Mr. Todd was in the city, in conference with CONDUIT IS TESTED, And the Spectators Londly Applaud Its Suc cess—A Wonderful Invention That Means Much for Atlanta.

"It is perfect."

Works like a charm." "The greatest electrical invention of Such were the universal verdicts nounced upon the Westerland conduit yes-terday when it was put to a practical test for the first time.

The story of the invention of this new ele trical appliance is familiar to the readers of THE CONSTITUTION.

The Constitution.

The idea was conceived by the late Mr.

Laurance Westerland, who had spent much of his life studying to devise some invention that would do away with the dangerous results of the overhead wires now used in the larger cities in the operation of street railways.

Mr. Westerland was a Swede by birth, but had been in this country for ten years, living for the last few years of his life in Atlanta until his untimely death about two months

He was a mechanical genius, and his various inventions, now known and utilized all over the world, have immortalized his name in the Forld of mechanical science.

But his last invention, which he was no spared to see meet the full realization of its grand purpose, is the greatest of all his con-

This was conclusively proved yesterday.

THE PRACTICAL TEST.

Ever since the completion of Mr. Wester land's model, illustrating his idea of a feasible apparatus for conducting electric currents under ground, it has been believed by those who have become acquainted with its parts, that the solution of the problem of overhead wires has at last been reached.

Yesterday was set apart by the owners of the invention as the time for putting the new underground conduit to a practical test. The operation was made publicly out at the plant of the Fulton County Electric Street Railway Company, and took place at 3 o'clock. Quite a large crowd of spectators, including men, women and children, were present to see the working of the new apparatus.

A track laid especially for the test had been arranged with the newly invented appliances, and measured something more than a hundred yards on a steep grade.

One of the cars belonging to the Fulton County Electric Line was fitted with such fixtures as were necessary to make it adaptable to the underground current. A wire was connected with the plant and brought to a little arrangement to be readily connected and disconnected in turn to the wire running the con-

The conduit was imbedded in the ground midway between the two tracks and was quite an ornamental affair along the road bed.

The car was quite a large and heavy one and when Mr. Frederic A. Hills, the electrical expert in charge, invited the people aboard for expert in charge, invited the people aboard for a ride up the steep grade, some one said: "You better try it unloaded first."

But Mr. Hills knew the machine too well, and after courteously ushering a great crowd into the car, said: "All aboard!" and turned the crank, confident of the result.

Quick as lightening, but with the grace of a great inducer the car, burdened with dozens.

Quick as lightening, but with the grace of a sweeping dancer the car, burdened with dozens of people, moved lightly up the grade obedient to the current that swept beneath and to the genius of the man whose invention it is.

The people in the car as well as the spectators on the ground said, "Ah, it's a grand success!" And soit is.

There was not a single evidence rendered with the test yesterday but was loudly in commendation of the appearatus, and each time the car was sent up and down the steep incline, opinions formed among the spectators more and more favorable.

the opinions formed among the spectators were more and more favorable.

"It hasn't a single objection," said one man after carefully looking at the details.

"It doesn't scare a fellow to death by having wires over his head, hissing and greaning like they wanted to coil around him and jerk him bodily from the face of the earth," said another, as he stepped lightly from the car after one of its noiseless journeys up the track.

"Yes," remarked a third, "it has every appearance of what a man would fancy the only way to run cars by electricity. It makes one wonder why didn't somebody getit outsooner."

Everybody came away delighted with the success of the experiment, and the owners have decided to give another exhibition of the new system this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the solicitation of many who were not present yes. terday.

HOW IT IS MADE.

It is plain and simple.
But safe and perfectly feasible.
The invention consists of the wire for conducting the current, an encasement for this wire and a trolly to connect with the motor in the bottom of the car. That's all.

The wire is well insulated from the encase

The wire is well insulated from the encasement and is held in the center by little props from the bottom.

The encasement is made of thin cast-iron castings, which are in two parts. One of these parts is the bottom piece, which reaches over one side and half way the upper surface. The other is screwed to the bottom piece and covers the other side of the encasement, nearly closing edges with the bottom piece on the upper surface.

Just enough space is left uncovered to allow the trolley to hang from the car to connect the trolley to hang from the car to connect with the wire inside.

This trolley is so riveted and jointed as to be perfectly pliable to the motion of the car, and thus works by gravity to keep the wheel on the wire, an end secured by the spring and lever in the overhead system.

The underground wire is about the same size of the one used in the overhead system. It is placed at a safe distance from the walls of the conduit, and is far enough from the bottom to prevent sand or any trash from covering it, as also to prevent water from overflowing it.

as also to prevent water from overflowing it as also to prevent water from overflowing it.

To further remove the fear of such obstruction the conduit is provided with drainage holes here and there, and the encasement will be cleaned out at night along street crossings.

No water can get in the conduit, except the rain that may chance to fall through the narrow crevice provided for the passage of the trolly.

WHAT IS CLAIMED FOR IT.

The claims of the new system are sized up It is as cheaply constructed and much safer than the overhead system. It can carry as heavy a load as any electric

It can carry as heavy a load as any electric system known.

It is the only underground system that has yet been experimented without serious objections becoming manifest.

There is absolutely no danger to life or property possible to result from it.

It is in fact a complete underground system for running electric street cars, and there is not the remotest shadow of a doubt entertained by all those who have seen it but that it will at once be utilized in every progressive city in the land.

The experiment was made yesterday on a grade of 7 8-10 per 100 feet, a more trying grade than is ever found along the street railway.

The castings for the experiment were made y the students at the Technological school, nd the work of manufacturing them can be done in any foundry.

done in any foundry.

Dr. Hopkins, president of the Technological school, who has thoroughly investigated the apparatus, said yesterday:

"I have done all I could to encourage Mr. Westerland in this invention, because when he first showed it to me, I saw that it was a great idea.

great idea.

"There is no reason in the world why it shouldn't be a practical system. Every feature is sound, and by estimating the cost I find that it is just as cheap as any other system. It has wonderful advantages, and the only possible objection is one that can easily be remedied if it should ever prove an objection. I refer to the liability of getting the conduit filled with sand. This can easily be avoided, however."

A COMPANY ORGANIZED.

The company to operate the newly invented conduit is chartered under the name, "The Westerland Electric Conduit Company."

It is composed of the following owners of the invention: Mr. N. J. Zachry, Mr. T. J. James, Mr. Alexander Beck, Mrs. Laurance Westerland, Mr. R. T. Dorsey and Mr. Albert Howell, Jr.

The charter allows the company to organize with a capital stock of $200,000, with power to raise it at any time to a million. THE WESTERLAND UNDERGROUND with a capital stock of $200,000, with power to raise it at any time to a million.

It is not decided among the company yet whether the apparatus will be operated directly or whether any of the stock will be put on the market for sale.

Mr. Zachry says that the company will build a large foundry in Atlanta for manufacturing the castings, and will equip roads all over the country.

"It can be done as advantageously in Atlan-ta," said he, "as in any northern city, and we will keep the whole thing right here for At-lanta's gain."

One thing is certain, if yesterday's experiment counts for aught, this will prove one of the most valuable electrical inventions ever known to the world of science and progress.

Mrs. Westerland, the widow of the inventor, was among the spectators yesterday that wit-nessed the experiment, and when it went off with such brilliant success she said, almost with tears in her eyes:

"It is surely sorrowful that he was not spared to see this day."

Colonel Machen and his company of Northern capitalists went out too late to see the experiment.

TERRIBLY MANGLED. Mr. R. T. McDonald Killed in Texas Yester

Mr. R. T. McDonald, of Atlanta, was killed in Texas yesterday morning.

His mangled body was found near the railroad track, some distance from Galveston.

The following dispatch was received last might:

GALVESTON, Tex., September 18.—[Special.]—B.
L. McDorald, who resides at either 56 or 62 Crew street, Atlanta, Ga., was found near a railroad crossing here today. He had been run over by a railroad train, and his lower limbs were badly mangled. He was not known here, and must have been a recent comer.

Previous to that, his relatives in the city had received telegrams from Dallas, and from Dennison, announcing his death.

Mr. McDonald married a daughter of Mr. Seaborn Love, about two years ago. His wife and child are out of the city, but will arrive here today.

About two months ago Mr. McDonald, who was a telegraph operator, learned that there was some landed property in Texas, in which he had a share.

He left here and went to Dallas, and from there he wrote home that he had secured a position and would remain in Texas until he could effect a satisfactory settlement of the affair in which he was interested. He carried with him an operator's card showing that he was a member of the operators' union, and that was how his body was identified.

identified.

His family in Parls, Tenn., his old home, had been informed of his death before the news reached his relatives here.

They telegraphed the authorities in Texas to send the remains to that place, and they will probably be buried there.

YESTERDAY'S FIRES. The Department Answers Two Calls-

Fireman Hurt. Two small fires, one occuring a few minutes after the other, made it lively for the fire de-

Neither fire amounted to much, but both alarms being so close together, brought out nearly the entire department.

The fire had gotten great headway on the structure when the department arrived, but the flames were finally under control, the dam-age amounting to about $200.

the flames were finally under control, the damage amounting to about $200. While the fire was in progress a lot of furniture and other stuff was thrown out into the the street. Among this was an old cavalry sabre. In hurrying about his work, Fireman Moseley, of No. 4, ran his foot against the point of this sabre and received a severe wound. The point penetrated the flesh considerably, making a painful wound. Fireman Moseley's hurt was attended to at Tyner's drug store, where he was taken by one of his comrades.

The second alarm called the reserve department to the Georgia railroad depot, where everal bales of cotton were burning. To this several bales of cotton were burning. To this alarm the firemen responded promptly and serious loss was prevented. Seven bales of cotton were singed slightly on the outside. RALLYING TO VENABLE.

SIDEWALK TALKS.

In a sidewalk talk with Judge Hillyer, we asked him if he had anything new. "Why, yes," said he. This abuse of Senator Quay by republican papers, such as The New York Tribune and Kennedy's speech forcibly reminded him of something in one of the Greek comedies, in a translation of Aristo phanes's play of the "Knights," by John Hook ham Frere, occurs the quotation in question I think it is very apt. Here it is:

I think it is very apt. There it is:

villain cheated. Close around him, left and right; spit upon him, spurn and smite; Spit upon him as you see; spurn and spit at him

There now, don't that sound like Kennedy's speech about Mat Quay, thoroughly distilled and boiled down? Wonderful, isn't it, how human nature is the same in all ages of the

The people who go away to get a few days of mountain air in September show a great deal of good sense. Some of our most trying days are just now, and but for the cool nights one could scarcely survive the intense heat of the forenoons. It's so tiresome and makes a body so impatient to be hot when he has every reason to expect the backbone of the summer to be broken.

Probably the greatest social sensation ever known to Atlanta society will be the coming of Marquis de Choiseul and the Marquise de Choiseul to visit their relatives, Mrs. Huard and the Misses Huard, on Peachtree. The Marquise de Choiseul is a sister of the Misses Huard and her Choiseul is a sister of the Missels rudard and ner son. The Marquis de Choiseul is a young man, a bachelor, and very fond of social life. He bears one of the oldest, most highly honored names in France—a name historically famous for many hundred years. This will be the marquis's first visit to America and he will spend the whole winter in Atlanta.

One of the most elegant gowns I have recently seen was worn by Mrs. Lochrane-Austell, and it bore such a Parisan stamp that I was sure it came from Worth until I learned that it was made by that wonderful little French dressmaker who has newly come and whom all the fashionable women are going to for the making of the gowns they don't order from abroad. This gown was a crepe de chine in that new shade of red everybody is wearing and over it scattered sprays o reseda. It was made in princess fashion, the bodice having a V of black lace, back and front outlined by narrow black lace insertion run through with reseds ribbon. This same ribbon run inserting made a point back and below the waist, and was finished at each point with fluffy little bunches of the ribbon. Let into the back drapery was a width of black lace, and the skirt-in front opened over the same black lace net drapery, and the underskirt was finished with a narrow-pleated ruffle, run with reseda ribbons. I forgot to say that the ribbon run insertion made a circular trimming about the arm holes, and finished the high-puffed sleeves. It was a charming gown, and looked like no other I've seen this season.

As will be seen from the programme below, the musical entertainment to be given tonight, under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association, will consist of some of the best talent in the city. After the musical programme, refreshments will be served. This delightful entertainment will be held at Mrs. Oliver Jones, 18 Pulliam street. Everybody in-vited.

There will be a delightful musicale tonight at the residence of Mr. C. H. Swift, 423 South Pryor street. It is given for the benefit of the Second Baptist church. GREAT DANGER.

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in Regard to Them.

Regard to Them.

When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravaces and dangerous to life. robbing one none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its rawages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first: It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "kaife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have haid aside all harsh means and treaf you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many ladies are affected with fistula. To all I say, do not let your thuidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. IN THE CITY HALL.

THE NEW HOOK AND LADDER TRUCK REACHES ATLANTA.

And Is Taken From the Flat Car-The Survey for the New Waterworks Again-Other Interesting Notes.

The new truck which was ordered by Chief Joyner, for the fire department, last May, reached Atlanta yesterday afternoon.

It is certainly a beauty.
Yesterday afternoon, it was standing on the Broad street bridge, and a large throng of enthusiastic admirers were constantly around it. It was pronounced, by all who saw it, the prettiest truck ever seen in the south. It was built by Rumsey & Co., of Seneca Falls, N. Y., and was made after Chief Joyner's own idea. And a happy idea it was too, for it has urnished the best fire department in the south with something it has needed a long time.

The firm, Rumsey & Co., who built the track, have congratulated Chief Joyner on his pattern. Since this one was built the manufac-turers have received orders for two more of the same kind, and expect to sell several of them, as they will in future make a specialty of this pattern. The truck is about five and a half feet high and weighs 3,000 pounds, which is exacty a difference of 3,000 pounds weight on the old one, it weighing something like 6,000 pounds. It is set on the best of wheels and well balaneed, so there will be no danger while on a fast run. It is furnished with seven ladders, ten hooks and buckets, axes, picks, pitchforks, crowbars, chain hooks, and in fact everything that could be needed around a

It also has two extinguishers and a pompier ladder, which is used for climbing into windows and other inconvenient places.

Back of the driver's seat, upheld between two polished nickel bars, is a portrait of Chief Joyner painted on metal. It is a good likeness, and a fireman will only have to look at it to inspire him to do his duty.

"Cap" didn't order that picture, but it was done by one of his friends at the place where the truck was made.

The new truck will answer all alarms,

The new truck will answer all alarms, but will be used principally in the residence portion of the city, while the old one will only do duty in the business portion.

There will be a new hose wagon here soon from Kelly & Co., Newark, N. J. This is a great improvement over the reel. It does not allow the hose to be exposed, weighs 2,000 pounds less than a reel, and at the same time does as much service. The fire department was never in a better condition, and, when the new engine house is completed, which will be by October 1st, they will be ready for anything. The department will have then in service three steamers, four reels, one hose wagon, two hook and ladder trucks, one chemical engine and Cap Joyner's little red wagon, which will always be there.

Board of Aldermen. The board of aldermen met yesterday afternoon with all the members present, except Alderman Haas. The business of the meeting was very quickly dispatched. A resolution was passed giving the board of education authority to rent an office for the use of the superintendent of the public schools in the central part of the city.

A resolution to pay the claim for damages of William Carter, whose property was injured by the city in grading Hilliard street, was passed. Damages amounted to $75.

Resolution to put a sidewalk on Simpson street for Frank P. Rice was adopted. Four and one-half dollars was passed up to Patrolman H. L. Abbott, to pay for glass which was broken by him while in the discharge of his duties as a patrolman.

The board passed up $100 in adjustment of the claim of Mrs. S. J. Gardner, whose property on Davis street was injured by the city.

The resolution of Mr. McLendon to allow the chaingang to divide into squads of twenty men each was refused. Ten dollars was passed up by the board to be returned to Mr. Brooks, pending a cer-poned until next meeting, so that it could be further investigated. The ordinance for another election on water bonds on October 14th was unanimously

The Waterworks.

Hall Brothers, the engineers, are very busy in making a report of their recent observations for the erection of new waterworks.

They are working day and night on their report, and say they will have it in by the end of this week.

of this week.

The engineers will recommend the Amicolal river as the best place from which the city can draw a supply of water.

They say that the Amicolola will give At-

They say that the Amicolola will give Atlanta a good a supply of water as any city in the country now has; that it will be inexhaustible, and that it can't become contaminated.

The river comes from perpetual mountain streams and flows over a rocky bed all the way. They wish to bring the water through in open canals, except at the river, where it will be brought across in pipes. The work can be done, too, much more cheaply than most people think. The cost of bringing the supply into the city will be considerably less than a million dollars.

Into the city will be considerably less than a million dollars.

The Messrs. Hall's recommendation will be not only a very careful one, but it will be a thoroughly practical one. One of the great beauties about getting the supply from this source is that if the people should ever want to increase the supply it can be readily done, and also if they should ever want to have the water conducted by means of a brick acqueduct, that can also be done without once stopping the flow of water.

duct, that can also be done without once stopping the flow of water.

The Seque, they say, is a good river, too, but not as good nor as practical as the Amicolola. The Seque runs through a gently undulating country, which can be cultivated and where railroads can be built, thus leaving a chance for the water to be contaminated. The Amicolola runs through a wild country, where no railroad can be built and where there is very little chance of cultivation, thus making it an absolute impossibility for contamination to occur.

They only ask that their plans be given a thorough study by the committee, and they feel confident that, if no prejudice is allowed to stand in the way, the next waterworks-supply will be coming from the beautiful Amicolola.

Through the Offices.

Mr. Charley Maddox, assistant city clerk, bas turned his attention to lectures.
Mr. James Loyd, city marshal, is busy with his fi fa. book.

Charley Keith, one of the tax assessors, will take an eastern trip next month.

The proposed increase of Mr. Malony's salary meets with general favor in the city hall.

There was a most enthusiastic meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in the pastor's study of the First Baptist church yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. M. L. McLendon presided, and Mrs. O. E. Mitchell, in the absence of Miss Missouri Stokes, acted as secretary.

The committees in charge of the business of securing homes for the delegates to the convention of the National Union brought in favorable reports in the way of having found homes for the visitors, and cash donations in the way of assisting the ladies in the work.

There were a large number of ladies present, and the meeting was very harmonious and enthusiastic throughout.

On motion, a committee, consisting of Mrs. S. A. Kilbey, Mrs. O. E. Mitchell and Mrs. J. M. Skinner, was appointed to call on Governor Gordon and ask that he give the delegates to the convention of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union a reception during their visit to the city.

MRS. WALTER JOHNSON'S DEATH. After Three Weeks' Illness She Passes

Mrs. Walter H. Johnson died yesterday.

It was the untimely ending of a beautiful life.

During the past spring months Mr. and Mrs.
Johnson removed from their home in Columbus, to a beautiful residence on the corner of Ponce de Leon avenue and Peachtree street.

Mrs. Johnson was a most lovable lady, and was an earnest worker in the Methodist church city there was not a more devoted lady than she, in all that tended to the upbuilding of the cause of Christianity.

Three weeks ago she was stricken with typhoid fever, and despite the efforts of physicians, and the tenderest care of careful nurses, continued to grow worse, until death claimed her yesterday.

Mrs. Johnson was a Miss Verstille, her full name being Mrs. Florence Verstille Johnson. She was a daughter of Mr. H. W. Verstille, of Columbus, and she leaves, besides her heartbroken husband, two bright and beautiful children, Neilie, nine years old, and Foger, seven years of age.

The remains were sent to Columbus for burial at 2:15 o'clock yesterday, and the funeral will occur in that city today.

In the death of Mrs. Johnson Atlanta has lost one who was an ornament to society, an earnest advocate of religion and a good and true wife and mother, well-beloved by all who

It is called for 11 o'clock this morning.

Be sure that you are there to strike out for the success of merchants' day at the exposi-Let nobody stay away that ought to be there.

If it be a rousing meeting and an enthusiastic one, the success of this feature of the forthcoming exposition is already secure.

It is the purpose of the exposition company to make merchants' day a grand occasion, and to do this the managers must have the hearty co-operation of the merchants themselves.

The matter of arranging a complete programme will be before the meeting today.

OUT AT THE GROUNDS.

Things are beginning to look like business

Things are beginning to look like business out at the exposition grounds.
Yesterday, President James R. Wylie made a thorough investigating survey of the grounds and buildings.
A representative of The Constitution also made a trip through the entire park to observe the marked improvements that are being made there by the enterprising management.
The grounds have been thoroughly shaped and graded, and the terraces have been sodded with beautiful grasses.
The walks and drives throughout the park are kept in elegant trim, and the new ones are kept in elegant trim, and the new ones that have lately been laid out will add much to the beauty of the place.

The race track has lately been put in excellent condition, and its hard bed now might successfully vie with the compact surface of a cindernath.

The large lawn enclosed by the track is covered with a carpet of fresh and living green, and in contrast to the white outline of the gravel track, presents a picture from the mammoth grandstand that is truly beautiful to see.

THE BUILDINGS.

Within the buildings the reporter found many improvements completed, as well as a number in course of construction.

The machinery hall has lately been extended by having a commodious wing built to it.

This was necessitated by the enormous rush of exhibitors in the machinery department, but even with the spacious addition the hall is engaged to the last inch, and many applicants for space have received a reluctant refusal from the management.

The hall is well equipped.

Among the new fixtures made in the hall for the convenience of the exhibitors, as well as for the entertainment of the visitors, is the mammoth 200-horsepower engine, which was recently bought by the company.

The engine has been placed in position, and stands ready today to obey the command of the authorities and throw its mighty power into the life and busy hum of the exposition.

That was a fitting compliment to the memory of the late Henry W. Grady when the directors of the exposition decided to name this mighty engine for him.

The main building is undergoing many improvements. Carpenters were at work yesterday in the second story arranging the different spaces set aside for the exhibitors.

Many of the exhibitors are already at work arranging their displays, and it is safe to say even now, that there will

Many of the exhibitors are already at work arranging their displays, and it is safe to say even now, that there will be finer exhibits arranged in the buildings when the exposition opens that were ever seen there before.

The exposition is surely drawing near, and to visit the grounds is to realize that it will come none too soon for the managers.

It opens October 15th and closes November 1st.

Chills and Fever.
When a person gets the chills and fever they don't want to take medicine that does them no good. They don't feel a bit like doing such a foolish thing. They want a medicine that is safe and one that is sure. Well, there is one remedy that, while being perfectly harmless, remedy that, while being perfectly harmless, has never failed and never will fail to completely cure chills and fever, and that remedy is Smith's Tonic Syrup. It is made by Dr. John Bull, Louisville, Ky., and is as sure to cure chill chills and fever as daylight is to follow darkness. In the malarial season it is an excellent remedy to have handy. A single dose will check a cold and allay feverish symptoms. Every intelligent family should keep it in their household and use it as a preventive of colds and malaria, as well as a quick cure.

Hebrew New Year Cards.

Remember that as usual I have the largest and best selected stock of Hebrew cards. My line this season is far superior to any other, as I have made the selection with great care, and only purchased the latest designs.

Strangers in the city will do well if, before opening an account elsewhere, they will call in and see our beautiful store, our large stock, noting at the time the extra quality goods of all kinds. Here, the connoisseur, the epicure, can indulge his tiste selecting from a varied stock of the freshest groceries in Atlanta. Just received fresh mackerel, small, but very julcy and sweet, three for 10 cents. More of those delightful Saratoga chips just received; they are crisp, and go well with a well-cooked beefsteak. For tea, we have Larabee's 5 o'clock tea cakes, tea table puffs, cafe wafers, vanilla wafers, zephyrettes and petite sea foam. These are all fresh, palatable and an ornament to the table. Then we have Beatrice, Champagne, Elite, Albert, Oswego, butter wafers and graham crackers. Do you remember those elegant imported Hoyt & Thorn petite pois and champignons blancs, sur extra? Well, we have them, just imported, arrived here only a few days since. Forterhouse steak and mushrooms, a feast, nothing better. We would be glad if you would note what extra fine quality goods our patrons will get from us this fall. You know the best sugarcorn comes from Maine. We will have "honey sugar corn" and "Thurber's Windham" corn, crimson cluster tomatoes and "Thurber's condensed stewed." Then below is a duplicate of a bill received from San Francisco, Cal, but the goods have not arrived: 25 cases table apricots, 75 cases pears in heavy syrup, 150 cases heavy syrup peaches, lemon cling, yellow Crawford and white Heath, 60 cases green gages, 10 cases golden drop plums. Now what more could you desire in fine table canned fruits? Besides, we guarantee the syrup heavier than any other sold on the market. Had we not bought be fore the advance, and before the fruit shortage was discovered, it would take $3,000 to place those goods in our store. Besides these we have all kinds of California drived fruits coming. Come over and try our fresh salmon steaks in cans. We have the finest quality French sarddnes in market Our chipped dr stitution.

$1,500 will buy a tract of 500 acres of finest timber land in North Carolina. It is within 150 miles of Atlanta on the line of the Western North Carolina railroad, just ½ mile from railroad station. It is heavily timbered mountain land. A forest of the largest oak, holckory, poplar and chestnut timber to be found in the south. Is situated on the side of the mountain facing the railroad, and the timber is as accessible to the railroad as it is possible to be. On it there are hundreds of chestnut trees 100 feet high, and as straight as an arrow, and many poplar trees are twenty feet in circumference. The timber on the place will sell for twice the price of the tract, and the land is very rich mountain land and produces well. Lumbermen from New York and Boston are buying large tracts in this vicinity for the northern market, and cross-tie timber is in great demand. It is immediately in the mineral belt, and no doubt has valuable mineral properties. It is well watered. The price of $3 per acre for such land so convenient to the market at atlanta is very low. Lumbermen will do well to investigate this. Will exchange for Atlanta property.

$300 each for two West End lots; 50x250 feet each, with 10-foot side alley. Only one block from the dummy line, and is a strictly first-class neighborhood. Elevated location; and they lid well. Liberal terms.

$10,500 for one of the most desirable homes on W. Peachtree street. It is a new 2-story 8-room house with all modern improvements, and is one of the most attractive homes in the city. Its location is unexcelled, and it is in every way a strictly pirst-class place. Lot 50x200 feet. Electric care pass the door, Liberal terms. Call and examine the premises.

$1,500 per acre for beautiful Peachtree lot, 10x750 feet, with 30-foot street on the side. Part of the Dimmock-Reynolds tract, just this side the Belt railroad and opposite the English property. Easy terms.

of the Dimmock-Reynolds tract, just this side the Belt railroad and opposite the English property. Easy terms.

$135 to $175 each for a number of desirable vacant lots on Curran, Hampton and Grove streets, near Emmett street. They are high and level, and the electric car line is now being built within a few feet of them. Good neighborhood.

$1,250 is what the choice Forest avenue lot, 50x150, can be bought for. It lies well, is in a splendid neighborhood that is already nicely built up with nice houses, has a ten-foot alley in the rear and is decidedly the best vacant lot on the north side for the money. Terms reasonable.

Ornewood Park is that beautiful tract of 100 acres just east of Grant Park and north of the Confederate Veterans' Home property. It is within one-fourth mile of Grant Park, Little Switzerland and the dummy line as it goes around the park. The dummy line to the home runs for a half mile through Ornewood, thus making every lot in the park very accessible. A large force of hands under the direction of Major Ghardes Boeckh is now at work grading out avenues and drives. A beautiful avonue, 60 feet wide, leading direct from Grant Park and the Boulevard, has already been graded through Ornewood, thus affording one of the most attractive drives around the city. Drive out there this evening and see for yourself. Mr. Harry Woodward has just completed a handsome $4,500 residence at the head of Ornewood avenue, and several more of equal value will be erected shortly by some of our best citizens. The entire 100 acres has been subdivided in the most advantageous manner, and the lots are from one-half to three acres each. No smaller lots will be sold. To those who will erect desirable residences we will sell these lots on most liberal terms, it being the object of the owners to build up this beautiful park with first-class houses rather than sell to speculators. To Those seeking an investment in Suburban Property.

We wish to call your attention to an investment in a large tract of land on Howell's-Mill road, which is offered at a low price for a few days only. It is right in the line of the many improvements already made and to be made between Atlanta and the river. It has a beautiful front of 3,000 feet on the road and lies well. Is just the right distance from the city at which to buy to get the best profit. Howell's Mill road has recently been changed from one of the roughest to the best road in Fulton county. Heavy cuts and fills have been made and the road splendidly paved. No objectionable features or surroundings. You can take it together, The price is far below what you can buy any other tract equally well structed, and the property is an anusually attractive one. It will pay you to call and get full particulars and inspect it. There is money to be made by acting promptly.

At the close of the drill, Colonel Calhoun expressed to a Constitution representative his satisfaction with the parade, and said that the Atlanta boys would undoubtedly maintain their well-earned reputation in military circles. He expressed some doubt of their entering a battalion competition owing to the limited opportunity they had for battalion drill, and the lack of a suitable parade ground. In company drill, however, they were sure to be "at the top of the tree."

JIM, THE PENMAN.

Mr. Palmer's Madison Square Theater Com

Such a powerful play, as "Jim, the Penman," requires a strong cast; because, in the hands of dialogue would suffer, and without the business and by-play that an intelligent actor uses, the imperfections of the author would stand out boldly, thus endangering his work. The late Sir

Charles Young admitted, unconsciously, or with full knowledge, that it depended largely on the players to make "Jim, the Penman," a successful play. He furnished an interesting and ingenious plot, sentiment, humor and strong dialogue, but his characters were roughly sketched; and it re-mained with the actors and actresses who ap-

His judgment is unerring, and he knows how to cast a play as no other manager can. For this reason the production of the famous play was memorable. The company appearing in the drama this season was personally selected by Mr. Pahner for this, its final tour. Gus Bell has succeeded in making his performance very interesting. Each time he has been in Atlanta he has demonstrated his desire to please his patrons by enlarging his company and producing new features. His liberality towards his patrons has not little contributed to his success. What he promised he always more than fulfilled and in that way inspired confidence in his promises. All over the south, Gus Bell is looked on as the "Little Napolecin" of that kind of performances, and none has been able to obtain such a degree of popularity, Everywhere he goes he fills the largest theatres to suffocation, and the crowds who patronize him never go away unsatisfied. This time Gus Bell brings plenty of new features and specialties, all more amusing one than the other, and his show causes a continuous ripple of laughter.

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for some time and it has worked wonders for me. I was troubled with dandruff and was rapidly becoming bald; but since using the Vigor my head is perfectly clear of dandruff, the hair has ceased coming out, and I now have a good growth, of the same color as when I was a young woman. I can heartily recommend any one suffering from dandruff or loss of hair to use Ayer's Hair Vigor as a dressing." — Mrs. Lydin O. Moody, East Pittston, Me.

"Some years ago, after a severe attack of brain fever, my hair all came out. I used such preparations for restoring it as ny phy-sicians ordered, but failed to produce a growth of bair. I then tried, successively, several articles recommended by dryegists, and all alike fell short of accomplishing the desired result. The last remedy I applied was Ayer's Hair Vigor, which brought a growth of hair in a few weeks. I think I used eight bottles in two years; more than was necessary as a restorative, but I liked it as a dressing, and have continued to use it for that purpose. I believe Ayer's Hair Vigor possesses virtues far above those of any similar preparation now on the narket."

HAVE A LITTLE SET-TO IN THE HOUSE.

Gentleman From Georgia Alludes to the Speaker As a Tyrant-An Attempt to Lock the Members In. WASHINGTON, September 18 .- In the house, after prayer by the chaplain, Mr. O'Ferrell, of Virginia, suggested that no quorum was The speaker was unable to count a quorum and directed the doorkeepers to notify the members in the lobby that their attendance was desirable. There were only fifteen democrats present.

In the course of half an hour the speaker ounced that 168 members-more than a -were present. Mr. O'Ferrell said he did not question the statement of the speaker, but he was sure that there were fifty members who would swear that there were not 168 members in the hall. The speaker remarked that the gentlemen would not swear, because there was no oppormity to do so under the rules of the house.

The journal was read, and the question arose upon its approval. Result of vote—yeas, 124; nays, 0. No quorum. A call of the house was ordered. The call showed the presence of 178 mem bers and the speaker directed the clerk to call the roll on the approval of the journal. Mr. Crisp, rising to a question of order, said that during the call of the house, but two tions were in order-to dispense with further proceedings under call and to adjourn.

the chair.

The Speaker—The gentleman from Georgia will take his seat.

Mr. Crisp—Of courso he will; he will always resent such remarks.

Mr. Haugen, of Wisconsin, moved to dispense with further proceedings under 'call.

During the call of the roll, one door which has always been kept open to allow ingress and egress was latched and two doorkeepers were stationed at it to prevent members leaving the chamber. The first gentleman to resent this enforced imprisonment was Mr. Kilgore, who forced back the slight fastenings and stalked into the lobby. He was soon followed by Mr. Crain, of Texas, who adopted the same tethod of procedure. Mr. Cummings, of New York, and Coleman, of Louisiana, approached the door together, and upon being informed that there was "no thoroughlare," manifested such a disposition to break the door from its hinges that one of the doorkeepers prudently removed the latch and permitted them to pass.

After this, the rule, was somewhat relaxed. Further proceedings under call were dispensed with. Yeas, 135; rays, 38.

The journal was then approved—yeas, 153; rays, 5—the clerk noting a quorum.

case.
On ordering the previous question the vote stood: Yeas, 135; nays 10; Mr. Hill, of Illinois, republican, voting in the negative. This being no quorum, a call of the house was ordered. There were but 151 members present, and the house, at 3:05, adjourned.
A republican caucus was announced to take place immediately.

THE DAY IN THE SENATE. The Bankruptcy Bill-Eulogies on the Late Representative Laird.

Washington, September 18.—The resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Plumb in the senate to recommit the bankruptcy bill to the judiciary committee, with instruction to amend it so as to provide for voluntary bankruptcy only, went over till tomorrow. Mr. Plumb offered a resolution directing the secretary of the treasury to inform the senate whether the rule or policy of his department, which requires the payment of checks for silver bullion over the counter of the subtreasury, instead of through the proper clearing house, does not result in paying out notes of larger denominations instead of those suited for circulation and use in ordinary business Representative Laird. for circulation and use in ordinary business transactions, and whether such a method of transactions, and whether such a method of payment does not result in the payment of gold instead of treasury notes.

Agreed to after some discussion.

The vice president announced his having signed the river and harbor bill.

The calendar was then taken up for an hour and the following bills, among others, passed: Senate bill to provide for the inspection of live cattle, hegs and carcasses and products thereof, which are subjects of interstate commerce. Senate bill to revive the grade of lieutenant general in the army of the United States. Senate bill to pension army nurses.

The remainder of the day's session was devoted to eulogism of Representative Laird, of Nebraska, and at 4:40 o'clock the senate adjourned.

SUMMONING THE ABSENTEES.

The Republicans Using Every Means to The Republicans Using Every Means to Secure a Quorum in the House.

WASHINGTON, September 18.—The caucus of the republican members of the house this afternoon lasted an hour and a quarter. The sole topic of discussion was the status of business in the house and the best means of obtaining a quorum to do business. It was found, upon roll call, that there are now in Washington 145 republican members, which is less than a quorum.

ton 145 republican members, which is less than a quorum.

Consequently, there are now twenty-eight republican absentees. The caucus resolved to make every effert to secure the attendance of those members, and telegrams will be sent out tonight representing the pressing need for their presence. It was stated that if these absentees return to Washington, the remaining business of the session can be closed up in a few days, while the failure to secure the attendance of a republican quorum will tend to protract the session indefinitely.

NOTES FROM OPELIKA. The Opening of the Schools-Real Estate

Matters.

OPELIKA, Ala., September 18.—[Special.]—
Our schools have all opened with a large attendance of pupils. Opelika has a system of schools, public and private, of which any city in the state might well feel proud, and is fast becoming an educational center.

The Primitive Baptists have just completed a handsome house of worship in the western part of the city.

The Grant Land Company has secured the services of Mr. H.] Shoel, the surveyor of the Elyton Land Company, and is having all of its property surveyed and divided into lots. It will begin selling the 1st of October.

The Bank of Opelika at an early date will erect a handsome new bank building on South Chambers street.

The Tariff Bill Conferees

Washington, Soptember 18.—Conferees on the tariff bill had a two hours' meeting this morning and it is reported made substantial progress. The most important action was the acceptance by the house conferees of the senate reciprecity amendment.

Amendments were not considered in order, but were taken up here and there whenever it appeared that no serious differences of opinion existed, and were agreed upon. Binding twine has not yet been disposed of. It is understood that the senate increase of the duties on wines and spirits has been abandoned by the senate members of the conference committee. The iron and steel and glassware schedules have not yet been considered. Messrs. Vance and Mills, of the democratic conferees, are not in the city. An attempt will be made to hold another session this afternoon. In view of the progress made today, the house conferees express the opinion that the bill will be ready for report by Monday.

KILGORE OPENED THE DOOR. An Unsuccessful Attempt to Lock the Democratic Members In. WASHINGTON, September 18.—When the democratic members began to decamp from the house today to break a quorum, while proceedings were pending to secure a vote upon the Langston-Venable election contest, Mr. Burrows called the attention of the speaker to the fact and saked if members present would be the fact and saked if members present would be the content of the speaker to the fact and saked if members present would be the saked in the saked to the fact and asked if members present would not be obliged to remain.

The speaker replied that the rules were intended to secure this end. He added that he did not see why they were not observed. Acand not see why they were not observed. Accordingly, Assistant Doorkeeper Houk directed all of the doors leading into the hall to be locked. Hardly had this been done, before Mr. Kilgore presented himself at the door at the speaker's left and sought to go out into the lobby. He found that the door was locked and the doorkeeper in charge refused to whock and the doorkeeper in charge refused to unlock "Unlock that door!" demanded the stalwart Texan. The doorkeeper moved not, whereupon Mr. Kilgore gave a sudden and vigorous kick, and the frail baize structure flew open, and Mr. Kilgore strode out. He was followed in about the same fashion by Representatives Crain, of Texas, Cummings, of New York, and Coleman, of Louisiana, who in turn forced the lock open without opposition from the door-keepers. At the moment Mr. Kilgore drove the door flying wide open, Mr. Dingley, of Maine, was approaching from the other side. The door struck him with full force in the face, bruising his nose badly. Mr. Coleman explains that he meant no disrespect to the house or to Speaker Reed in forcing an exit from the hall.

He felt compelled to leave, but upon his first refusal by the doorkeeper, he returned to his desk. Later he saw that Mr. Crain had no difficulty in getting out, and believing that he was being made the victim of unjust treatment, Mr. Coleman made a second application that the door be opened for him, and receiving a second refusal, forced it open with his knee. As soon as he had transacted the business which called him out, he returned and took his seat again.

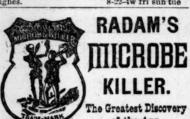

THE LAST WAR HORSE. He Still Carries His Bider to All the Re-

ABNER, Tex., September 18.—[Special.]—
The last war horse is not dead yet. "Old Dave" still lives. He is owned by Uncle Ed King, who rode him into the war the second year. Mr. King belonged to Terrell's regiment of Texas cavalry. The horse is 15½ hands high, a dark brown, well-proportioned, and in good fix now, this being September 18, 1890. The horse was thirty-two years old last spring. Nothing is known of his pedigree. He was brought to Kaufman county, from Goliad, when a colt, by horse drovers.

Mr. King is a citizen of Kaufman county. His postoffice is Terrell, Tex., for reference. Mr. King attends all reunions within his reach, and rides the horse and saddle that he rode through the war. On August 8, 1889, at a reunion, "Old Dave" seemed as though possessed with supernatural instinct, as was shown by his movements during the procession. When the band was playing he would stand erect and paw, and if moving, incline to prance. His food has to be ground. The miller, Mr. Pat Hogan, will not toll the grain that is being ground for the old horse, because they were in the war was about 165 pounds; now it is 220 pounds, and "Old Dave" carries him wherever he goes.

Central debenture 98 Augusta and Savannah 140 Atlanta and West Point 108 Atlanta and West Point debenture 100 THE STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, September 18 .- The stock market NEW YORK, September 18.—The stock market today was quiet and irregular, and notwithstanding the bear pressure, displayed most prominently in grangers, the impression made upon values, outside of St. Paul, was insignificant. Buying was of a nature to attract little attention, but was steady throughout, and the market was active only when the bears endeavored to get prices down by short sales. There is a great deal heard down by short sales. There is a great deal heard from shorts now about liquidating, which must come upon any rise in values, but it seems to attract little attention, and while the army of buyers is not large at present the growing ease in the money market is expected to develop it soon, and indications are that the short interest, which evidently has not been seriously diminished by the late decline must inevitably farmish a stimulus. late decline must inevitably furnish a stimulus to any rise which may come. The purchase of 4 per cents, m st of the funds from which will come to this city, was the last final blow to the manipulathis city, was the last limit blow to the many tar-tion of the money market, and while the operators are slow to take hold, a return of confidence must in the near future create not only a wider and more active market but an improvement in values as well. Talk is already heard of gold imports, notwithstanding the cry that there would be no cereals for exports, but the fact that there is still a large for exports, but the fact that there is suit a large surplus left over, and only one country in Europe has over an average crop, renders the demand for what we have to sell a certainty, and that at ma-terially higher figures than prevailed a year ago. The pressure from the bears was not so severe nor so long continued as yesterday, but it was diso long continued as yesterday, but it was ex-rected against the same stocks, with the excep-tion that Burlington and St. Paul was selected as a special point of attack, but it yielded only 1½ per cent on a rumor that the payment for Milwaukee and Northern would be made by an issue of new stock. Efforts to get prices down met with no success in the remainder of the list, however, and before noon a strong tone was again developed, which continued without interruption for the rest of the day. The bulls took Lackawanna, Chicago Gas and some specialties in hand. In those stocks, Gas and some specialties in hand. In those stocks, with Sugar Refinerles, gains were marked. The feature of late trading was the strength in Rio Grande, western stocks and Mobile and Ohio, the latter rising 2 per cent, and Rio Grande Western 4½. Slight recessions took place toward the close of business, but they were generally recovered and the market finally closed quiet but firm to strong, at or near the best prices of the day. Almost everything traded in is higher this even-ing. Sales of listed stocks 194,000 shares, unlisted Exchange quiet but firm at 481 1/4@4.85. Money easy at 3@6; last loan 3, closing offered Sub-treasury balances: Coin $155,998,000; currency, $6,884,000.

NEW YORK, September 18—[Special]—lerings of cotton in Liverpool today creweak feeling in the arrival market, as ex southern markets, and were free reliers. Spinner takings today were well up to the other requirements, the present differences between yarns and the raw material justifying free purchases of cotton upon the present plane of values, and they are availing themselves of the opportunity to secure profits. The decline abroad brought out a few sellers, depressing prices slightly with a recovery at the close to the opening quotations. Crop advices are expected to improve with the prosent clear, warm weather, but conservative operators are indisposed to follow the decline from this level mutil the outlook for the crop is more settled than at present, and in this course they are confirmed by the reports of the different state commissioners of agriculture, notably Louisiana and Georgia, which bear out private advices recently Georgia, which bear out private advices recent'y received. Our close was steady, showing the de-cline had created a local short interest.

Cline had created a local short interest.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, September 18—Wheat—A good speculative trading, but a feeling of nervous uncer tainty pervaded the market all day. The opening was about 1/40 lower than yesterday's closing, held firm and advanced 1/40/40; then a weak spell set in, caused no doubt by a rumor of another failure at Boston, which was afterwards denied, and at Boston, which was atterwards denied, and prices declined 134@134c. From this there was an irregular advance of 34@2c, eased off some and closed about 34c higher for December and 34c higher for May than the closing figures yesterday. There were frequent fluctuations within the established range. The improvement was perhaps attributable as much to local speculation as to any outside news.

Corn-There was a good trade. The opening was strong and % higher. A decline of % followed on the Price Current's statement that corn had not been injured by the late frost, but was still immature, and susceptible to hard frosts and light frosts would help the maturing process. A good rally occurred, and the market closed with a slight gain. Oats were traded in moderately for May, but the other deliveries were neglected. Free selling was the start, and the weakness in wheat and corn caused a decline of %c. After the selling subsided a firmer feeling developed, and prices advanced %c., and the market closed steady at about outside figures.

Mess pork—Trading only moderate. Prices ruled 756@10c lower, and the market closed rather firm le figures

Lard-Only a moderate business was transacted. At the opening it was rather firm, but after a few orders were provided for at outside figures prices

Short ribs-Some interest was manifested in the market. A few orders were on the market early and some transactions were made at slightly improved prices. Later prices receded 21,25c. Near the close prices rallied to medium figures and
